Fix Salaries For County Officers During Next Year

Salaries Remain Same in Most Cases, But Officials and Employes Accept 10 per cent Cut for 1933.

The committee on salaries reported to the board of supervisors Monday evening, fixing the salaries of the various county officers for the coming year. All salaries with the exception of county court stenographer and stenographer to the surrogate remained basically the same with a temporary cut of 10% for 1933 in order to relieve the present economic situation. At a recent meeting the supervisors voted themselves a 10% reduction in salary for the next year and other county officials whose salaries are fixed by statute volunteered to do along with the supervisors and accept a 10% temporary reduction for 1933. This 10% reduction in the salary item of county officials and the supervisors themselves means a saving of perhaps more correctly stating a donation of about $13,000 to the taxpayers of the county.

The salaries of the county officials effect a saving of $11,850.20. The 10% cut of the 33 supervisors means an additional $1,155. The salary total of county officials was $105,673.68 and for 1933 the same basic salaries will prevail but there will be a 10% cut, making the total salary account for 1933 $93,823.48.

The only change in the salary schedule was that of county court stenographer which was raised from $1,200 to $1,500, but the salary of the stenograapher at the surrogate's court, which position is occupied by the same stenographer, was reduced from $1,800 to $1,300.

The committee also recommended that the county superintendent of highways be given $2,700 for additional temporary assistants and that $500 be appropriated for extra help at the Motor Vehicle Bureau during the three rush periods of the year when the regular help could not handle the rush.

The committee on salaries expressed in its report its appreciation over the cooperation of the county officials in volunteering a 10% reduction of wages in 1933 to help reduce the tax budget.

The committee recommended that there be appropriated and assessed and levied on the taxable property of the county of Ulster the sum of $77,487.93, which amount together with the amounts heretofore transferred by the board to the salary account of the several counnty offices and employes will be sufficient to meet the salary requirements to be paid during the ensuing year. A further recommendation was made that there be raised on the county the sum of $1,650 to pay the salaries of the clerk and assistant clerk of the board authorized by a resolution adopted January 10, 1930. The committee further recommended that there be assessed and levied on the taxable property outside the city of Kingston the sum of $5,490 to pay the salary of the county commissioner of public welfare and the salary of the deputy county commissioner of public welfare and the county sealer of weights and measures.

8 Dead By Violence In Chicago Today

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP)—Metropolitan Chicago counted eight deaths by violence today—six by guns in near zero temperatures; one by suffocation when robbers left a woman victim to die after binding and gagging her, and another from stabbing.

Of the six, three were policemen, one a bandit, another an alleged automobile thief and another a former lightweight boxer.

The killings occurred within a few hours of an anti-crime ultimatum delivered by Mayor Anton J. Cermak to the city's police captains.

The Dead

Detectives Frank Svec, 44, and Edgar Chatterton, 33, of suburban Berwyn's police department.

Policeman Albert G. Magoon, 35.

An unidentified robber who died while being taken to the Bridewell Hospital after engaging in a pistol fight with a drug store owner and an employe he and a confederate attempted a holdup.

Joseph Seidel, 20, shot and instantly killed by police during a four-mile chase in a stolen car.

Frankie Schaeffer, 30, former boxer. Body found in a tailor shop which police said was a beer flat.

Miss Gertrude Frisch, 49, suffocated while her 75-year-old father, also bound and gagged, looked on unable to help her.

Mrs. Miguel Ramires, 28, a boarder in her home. Vincente Granades was hunted by police after her husband reported finding her stabbed to death.

MRS. GEORGE W. DEGRAFF BREAKS ANKLE IN FALL

Mrs. George W. DeGraff, wife of Nightwatchman DeGraff, of 54 Lucas avenue, broke her right ankle in a fall on a slippery sidewalk on Monday afternoon and was removed to the Kingston Hospital in the ambulance for treatment.

Mrs. Judd Plans To Save Her Life

Florence, Ariz., Dec. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona's trunk murderess, called her husband and attorneys into conference here today at the state prison to lay plans to prevent her execution by hanging which the State Supreme court has set for February 17.

Her only hope for immediate delay in yesterday's court's order is a formal petition for a rehearing of the arguments presented when the new trial was sought. Arthur C. Verge, of Los Angeles, one of the condemned woman's attorneys, said the application for a rehearing would be filed immediately.

Three other possible avenues of escape from the death penalty also were open. She may appeal to the State Board of Pardons and Parole; she may obtain a sanity hearing before a Pinal county jury, but only at the request of the warden of the state prison; or she may appeal to the Supreme court of the United States.

Business Certificate.

Lena Kline of 100 McEntee street has certified to the county clerk that she is conducting a business in Kingston under the name and style of L. Kline.

Legislature Hears Proposals to Reduce Teachers' Salaries

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—The special New York legislature, which in two sittings has done actively little more than hear two messages from Franklin D. Roosevelt and receive four bills and a senate resolution, buckles down to work today with hearings on proposals to reduce salaries of teachers and New York city firemen and police.

Another proposal, which like these was recommended by the President-elect to reopen the New York city budget to permit economies up to $40,000,000, also will be taken up at a hearing.

Delegations of teachers, who last night heard Mr. Roosevelt's second message read to the extraordinary lame duck session, remained overnight to oppose at the hearings "any salary reductions whatsoever". The governor's brief message last night recommended an extension of the period of eligibility for 310 teachers in New York city who have been unable to find jobs and whose elegibility expires this month.

The reading of the governor's message and the introduction of a bill to carry out his proposal was the principal business of last night's perfunctory meeting, which like the opening session last Friday lasted only a few minutes in both houses.

At no time was there any suggestion that bills will be introduced to effect the two "reform" proposals for which the governor yesterday announced he was ready to fight.

One of these is the Alfred E. Smith suggestion for reorganization of New York city government, and the other the governor's own surprise plan for virtual state receivership for communities that might default their obligations.

But if active signs of support for the Roosevelt reforms were lacking, the legislative lobbies nevertheless buzzed with rumors concerning the progress of efforts to swing support into line.

After the session Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, Republican chairman of the legislative committee which investigated New York city government, said the report of his committee would be ready before the end of the year for presentation to the regular session which convenes January 4.

The Republicans would like to see revision of the New York city charter along lines recommended by their committee, whereas Governor Roosevelt wants an investigation committee created immediately to look into the New York city reorganization.

Negligence Action In Supreme Court

In supreme court Monday afternoon a jury was taken in negligence actions brought by Edson Wood and Anna D. Wood against Harris Brown and wife. The action grows out of an accident at the corner of Pearl and Green streets in November of 1930, when a car alleged to have been owned by defendants and occupied by Mrs. Brown and a chauffeur collided with a car of Mr. Wood which was being operated southerly on Green street. The Brown car was being operated west on Pearl street.

Mr. Wood seeks to recover damages sustained by his car and Mrs. Wood seeks damages for injuries suffered. At the time Mr. and Mrs. Wood were enroute to Dr. Broberg's office on St. James street.

Plaintiff alleges that the Brown car struck his car near the front end and damaged it and that Mrs. Wood was thrown to the floor of the car and injured. Mr. Wood testified that after striking his car the other car struck the traffic standard and ran about 100 feet down Pearl street and stopped. After the accident he claims Mrs. Brown told him to go to Mr. Brown's place of business and that he would take care of the repairs. It was Mr. Wood's testimony that he did go to see Brown and that Mr. Brown directed him to go to a place to have repairs made and that the car was taken to the shop and repaired. One of the Brown employes went along to guide Mr. Wood to the place.

There is a question of who actually did own the car.

Brinnier and Elsworth appear for plaintiffs and the defendants are represented by A. J. Cook who appears for Ireland, Caverly and Hendrickson, attorneys of record.

MR. GORMAN CORRECTS ACCIDENT STORY

In the interest of accuracy Mr. Gorman states that Margaret Bertrand, who fell on the slippery pavement Saturday evening and was later taken to the hospital for treatment, did not fall on the sidewalk, but in the roadway as she was crossing the street. She was assisted to the sidewalk by Mr. Nelson, who was returning from supper and taken into the Rose & Gorman store. Incidentally Mr. Gorman stated that the sidewalk in front of the store was sanded every hour during the evening to prevent just such accidents to patrons and pedestrians.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, Dec. 13. (AP).—Treasury receipts for December 10 were $7,391,568.22; expenditures, $11,979,447.69; balance, $525,480,082.11. Customs duties for 10 days of December were $5,265,379.63.

Policeman Wood to Retire from Force

Files Resignation to Take Effect December 31—Was Appointed to Force May 1, 1908—Drove Old Black Maria in Days When Department Used Horses.

Policeman Simon Wood, after 24 years of service as a member of the Kingston police department, will retire from active duty on December 31. He filed his resignation Monday afternoon with the board of police commissioners, and it was accepted. Walter Madajewski of 39 Second avenue will receive a temporary appointment to fill Officer Wood's place until a permanent appointment is made from the civil service list of patrolmen which contains about 25 names.

Policeman Wood was appointed a member of the department on May 1, 1908, during the administration of Mayor Walter P. Crane and when the late Police Chief Stephen Hood was head of the police department. Officer Wood for years drove the old horse-drawn Black Maria and ambulance until the department was motorized under the administration of Mayor Palmer Canfield.

None of the members of the police force were members of the department when Officer Wood first assumed his duties. Sergeant Charles Phinney was appointed a member of the force a few weeks after Officer Wood assumed his duties and Chief of Police J. Allan Wood took office in July of 1908.

Officer Wood came to Kingston from Binnewater where he had been employed by the Lawrence Cement Company, and worked with the trucking firm of Van Etten & Hogan for five years before becoming a member of the police department.

During the nearly quarter of a century that Officer Wood has efficiently served the department he has seen many changes both in the civic and police life of Kingston. During that period there have been many changes made in police methods in Kingston. The police signal system was installed; a finger print department organized, and the department motorized.

Officer Wood, who is known to many as "Sime" Wood, in retiring from the force takes with him not only the best wishes of the other members but also of his many friends that he has made in the city during the years he has served as a police officer.

FARM RELIEF ISSUE ADVANCES IN CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—Farm relief, a paramount issue of the short session, advanced a step further in congress today with leaders of organized agricultural groups lending support to the allotment plan which has found favor with President-elect Roosevelt.

While the house agriculture committee worked on the draft of a bill embodying the allotment principles, the senate drove ahead toward a vote late today or tomorrow on Philippine independence, also linked with farm relief.

Democratic leaders viewed the action of farm leaders as taking them over a major hurdle in the drive to accomplish their legislative program before March 4 and were optimistic that a vote could be had in the house soon after the question of legalizing beer had been disposed of.

The length of time that should elapse before the Philippines obtain full freedom embroiled the senate, along with sharp debate over restricting duty-free imports during the transition period. Meanwhile, the house found itself in a controversy over federal pay cuts as it continued consideration of the first of the eleven major appropriation bills, that for the treasury and post office departments.

SOUTH RIVER COUNTRY MENACED BY FLOODS

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 13 (AP).—The south river country is menaced again by floods.

Persistent rains sluicing over the watersheds have set rivers rising in sections of Mississippi, Alabama and West Georgia. Little damage has been reported so far, but danger lies in continuation of the wet weather.

The Mississippi was quiet but its sons and neighbors were unruly.

Dr. Holland, Noted Zoologist, Dead

Pittsburgh, Dec. 13 (AP).—Dr. W. J. Holland, 84, internationally known zoologist and director emeritus of the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburgh, died at his home early today. He held decorations from a number of foreign governments for his research in insect life.

Dr. Holland, educated at Moravian College, Amhert College and Princeton Theological Seminary, suffered a stroke two weeks ago, and third within the past year.

He was born in Bethany, near Mandeville, Jamaica, on August 16, 1848, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Francis Raymond Holland, Moravian missionaries from Salem, N. C.

Governments from whom Dr. Holland received decorations include Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Russia, Spain and Austria.

He is survived by his widow and two sons.

Safety And Sanity Kingston's Keynote

At a recent gathering of bankers and men of large business interests in Kingston, the financial situation here thoroughly was discussed. It was agreed that all of the local banks, including savings banks, were in a sound condition and that the policy of confining loans to local commercial necessities should be continued.

It was unanimously agreed that this was not the time to expand or in any way to increase municipal activities. In fact, it was thought that one or two well might be eliminated.

In discussing these suggestions it was emphasized that Kingston has lost several industries of an important character, the income derived from which gave employment at good wages to many citizens. Among those losses are:

The quarrying, shipping and sale of bluestone.

The quarrying, manufacture and sale of Rosendale cement.

The harvesting and sale of natural ice.

The manufacturing and sale of cigars.

The handling and shipping of anthracite coal.

Also that the auto truck has destroyed large shipping interests from local docks and greatly lessened the importance and volume of the towing of cargoes.

Notwithstanding all this people are confronted with the demand for increased expenditures without an adequate return.

The attitude of the Taxpayers' Association in disapproving the creation of a pathological laboratory was highly approved. The vigilance of the board of health was warmly commended, it being conceded that the health conditions of Kingston were unusually fine, largely owing to the unceasing vigilance of the members of that board.

The recent editorial in The Freeman commending the continuance of the old fashioned family doctor as one of the most beneficent factors in the preservation of health, the prevention of disease and the inadvisability of concentrating medical treatment in large centers of population was heartily approved.

It was emphasized that while much might be pleasant, yet Kingston was a city of approximately only 30,000 inhabitants, the majority of whom were persons of moderate means, that the maintenance of substantially 30 religious organizations and many charitable activities, constitutes a reasonably sufficient contribution to that altruistic ideal which for many years the city has successfully maintained.

Junior League Low Cost Menu

The rooms of the Junior League on Meadow Street were filled with an enthusiastic gathering of women yesterday afternoon. They had come to attend the first of a series of six demonstrations on the subject "Attractive and nourishing menus at a low cost."

These classes are under the personal supervision of Mrs. Barnard Joy, a member of the Junior League, who has completed courses at both Skidmore College and Cornell University in Home Economics and Household Marketing. It is hoped that by this means many unfortunate mothers will be able to provide healthy, appetizing meals on a very limited income. An example of this is one woman who is attending these demonstrations. There are five in the family but the income for food is only $6 per week which means that they have only 16 cents per day per person to live on. The aim of the Junior League is to enable such mothers as this to keep her family healthy in body and mind.

This work is being carried on in connection with the other clinical and baby welfare work done at the Meadow Street Health Station. The money to carry on this necessary charity is being raised this year by the presentation of the "Junior League Revue" at the Broadway Theatre the night of December 21, at 8:30 p. m.

NOTED PROHIBITIONISTS APPEAR BEFORE GROUP

Washington, Dec. 13. (AP).—Leaders in the ranks of prohibition supporters today before the house ways and means committee opposed legalization of beer.

Among them were Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League and others.

They followed a score of women dry leaders who yesterday attacked proposals to modify the Volstead act, and completed the prohibitionists' side of the hearings which have been held since last Wednesday.

The committee will hear Secretary Mills of the treasury tomorrow, and then decide on the alcoholic content and tax to be included in any bill reported. Democratic leaders hope for a vote in the house before Christmas.

French Committees Reject Herriot's War Debt Plans

Reject Plans of Premier Herriot to Pay With Reservations the Debt Installment Due the United States on Thursday—England Will Pay With Reservations Suggested Several Days Ago

Paris, Dec. 13 (AP).—The foreign affairs and finance committees of the Chamber of Deputies today rejected Premier Herriot's proposal to pay with reservations the debt installment due the United States on Thursday.

The vote in the foreign affairs committee was 29 to 9, in the finance committee, 22 to 9.

The premier, with the backing of his council of ministers, had prepared a note for transmission to Washington declaring the intention of paying the $19,261,438 and asking that the payment be counted as a part of an eventual accord.

The draft of the note asserted that unless a definite settlement of the debts issue can be made France will be unable "to support henceforth the burden of a regime which can only be justified by the payment of reparations."

England Will Pay.

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—A laconic British note dispatched to Washington today promising to pay the debt instalment due on Thursday signifies that there has been no change in the basic British policy of cancellation of the war debts, with payments to be made under protest or with reservations until that goal or at least a drastic revision of the debts has been realized.

The new note merely affirms in words less liable to be misunderstood what was set forth in the British note of last Sunday, and completes the exchange of legalistic views.

What the note lacks in the eyes of government critics, is any notification to the United States that the $95,550,000 payment due this week will be the last Great Britain will make under the present funding scheme.

The government meets this criticism somewhat with a renewed appeal to the United States for an early review of the whole problem.

The latest note was made available after a cabinet session at No. 10 Downing Street this morning over which Prime Minister MacDonald presided.

He reported also that the disarmament conference has been given a new lease of life by the five-power negotiations at Geneva which are expected to result in the return of Germany to the general parleys.

Mr. MacDonald has been suffering from a cold, but the negotiations at Geneva seemed to have served as a tonic to his health.

Dr. Fite Gave Last Lecture Monday

The last of the series of six Monday Club lectures given by Dr. Emerson D. Fite, Ph. D., of Vassar College, on "The World of Today," occurred on Monday afternoon at the chapel of the First Reformed Church.

Before Dr. Fite spoke, Mrs. Lawton, president of the club, presented Mrs. George Van Deusen Hutton, president of the Junior League, who very concisely told of the accomplishments of the League along Child Welfare lines in the community. Her story was exceedingly interesting and closed with a cordial invitation to all present to attend the Junior League Revue which will be given December 21, for the benefit of the Child Welfare work of the League.

Dr. Fite in opening his last lecture, which was on "The League of Nations. The World Court," designated the Nineteenth Century as one of nationalism on the part of all nations and that of the Twentieth Century as one—so far—of internationalism.

The lecturer recalled, how, during the World War we had a League to Enforce Peace, out of which developed the League of Nations.

Dr. Fite mentioned and described four things that the League of Nations does not do: It passes no laws, it has no physical force to back it, its officers have no right to levy taxes, there is no administrative nor executive body.

Dr. Fite considered the biggest achievement of the League of Nations to be the World Court, and said that America had a right to judge of the value of such an organization since for years we have carried on successfully a World Court in our own Supreme Court which rules over 48 states successfully.

Dr. Fite ended his lecture with the statement that this is the testing time of the League of Nations. If it succeeds in some way in the Manchurian situation in getting Japan out of Manchuria by peaceful means it will be established for all time and if it fails it will be dead for all time.

CONTINUE SELECTION OF JURY FOR TRIAL

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—Selection of the jury to try two of Auburn prison's most extraordinary inmates, red-haired George Small, crippled convict-lawyer, and smiling Arthur Barry, who boasted that he stole $2,000,000 in jewelry, continues today with little prospect that trial of the riot charges against them will begin before tomorrow.

Barry, keen and alert, who prison guards say led the dash for freedom of four men who ran along the prison wall during the July, 1929, riot and dropped 30 feet to freedom, takes second place to Small in the interest of spectators at the trial.

The jewel thief, recently recaptured in the New Jersey Hills, is defended by a lawyer, while Small is appearing as his own attorney. His last act as yesterday's session came to a close was to dismiss, with Max Goldman, counsel for Barry, all but four men from the jury box which had been completed by District Attorney Theodore M. Coburn.

The four jurors retained are farmers.

Arrest Newburgh Man.

George Sterling was arrested at 7 Spring street, Newburgh, Monday by Kingston prohibition office investigators. He was arraigned before Commissioner Northrop on a charge of possession and sale and was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing December 19. The agents seized alleged whiskey, wine and beer.

Colder Weather Followed Snow

The snow storm that broke over Kingston late Saturday afternoon and continued at intervals throughout Sunday, was followed by much colder weather today. The snowfall has afforded work for a number of unemployed men who were put to work on Monday by the emergency work relief committee and who continued at work today.

The weather, however, has not been cold enough to form ice of any thickness in the Rondout creek or the Hudson river. Skim ice formed during the night in the creek, but today the creek was clear of ice, and there was no ice in the river off Kingston Point.

On Monday the weather had moderated to a great extent and the snow left in the streets formed a slushy covering for the pavement. Toward night, however, the weather changed and the temperature steadily dropped until today the pavements were covered with ice.

STRANGER WANTED TO SEE FORMER KAISER.

Doorn, the Netherlands, Dec. 13 (AP).—A well dressed stranger, caught yesterday in the former Kaiser's castle with a long dagger and a pistol on his person, was identified by castle guards today as a man who gained access to the castle grounds last Sunday, but was ejected.

They said he had stayed at a local hotel since Saturday under the name Hillmklod, but that his real name was supposed to be Eder. The man said he was German and had a message for the former Kaiser from Adolf Hitler, National Socialist party chief in Germany. The prisoner was taken by a police guard to the provincial capital, Utrecht, whence it was believed he would be escorted across the frontier. While in Doorn his behavior was quiet and he excited no suspicion.

HAS BILL TO PROTECT U. S. OIL INDUSTRY

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—Counting on support from congressmen of the oil producing states, including New York, Representative Cochran, of Mercer, Pa., has introduced an oil tax bill designed to protect the American petroleum industry.

The bill, introduced last week, calls for an increase of 84 cents a barrel in the tax now levied on imports of crude oil and crude oil derivatives. The present tax is 21 cents.

Cochran proposes to push for committee consideration of his tax bill immediately the ways and means committee clears its desk of the involved beer controversy.

Men's Club Meeting Postponed.

The monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the First Reformed Church, which was to have been held on next Friday evening, and which was to have been addressed by the Hon. George F. Kaufman, has been postponed indefinitely. This has been done to enable all those desirous of attending the Tidmarsh concert at the Fair Street Church to do so.

ALLOTMENT PLAN OF RELIEF IS FAVORED

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—Ignoring suggestions of a possible presidential veto, farm leaders today rallied behind the voluntary domestic allotment plan for agricultural relief.

After a meeting lasting into the early morning hours, they went before the house agriculture committee, prepared to tell Chairman Jones they would support the plan if additional consumer costs were not passed on to by-products of the commodity served.

President-elect Roosevelt, who has shown a leaning to the allotment principles, was represented at the conference of 15 national farm and commodity organizations by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., mentioned as a possible choice for secretary of agriculture.

NORTH FLATBUSH HOMEMAKING CLUB

The meeting of the North Flatbush Homemaking Club was held on Friday, December 9. The meeting was called to order by the president, Ruth Burhans. It was opened with a song, "Club Work Girls." Following the club gave the flag salute and sang "America." The roll was called and the minutes of the previous meeting read and approved. The reports of the committees were given, followed by a song. The club pledge was said and a cheer was given.

Following that members held the instruction period in which Julia Casenza showed how to make Mock Hollandaise Sauce.

FIFTH WARD REPUBLICANS WILL MEET TONIGHT.

There will be a meeting tonight of the Fifth Ward Republican Club at Roberts's Hall, North street, starting at 8 o'clock. Election of officers will be held and important business transacted. A social will follow the meeting.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

The Half of It

Pittsburgh—Helen Half, attractive co-ed, has attended three colleges in the last four years and each fall the institution of her choice has sent its football team to California for the Rose Bowl classic.

In 1929-30, while at the University of Pittsburgh, the Panthers met California in the New Year's clash. In 1931 (she didn't attend college in 1930) while at the University of Alabama the gridmen from that school battled Washington State by the Blue Pacific.

This year she returned to Pitt and now the Panthers are going west again. Miss Half said she hasn't decided where she'll go next year, adding, "but I'm open for bids."

Industrious Co-ed

Madison, Wis.—Someone has said that it's Betty Co-ed who is paying the price of the financial recession by staying at home while her brother goes to college, but Ann Freisen at the University of Wisconsin probably hasn't been bothered by the idea.

She operates a telephone switchboard, cooks at one home, sews at another, and cleans the house where she lives, and with the four jobs has managed to pay off the $100 mortgage her parents used to raise money for her tuition.

And her grades have averaged nearly 90.

Maybe So, Maybe Not

Boston—Mayor Curley says "Any girl worth marrying is worth two dollars to marry" and follows his philosophizing with the announcement that he would petition the incoming state legislature to double the fee for marriage licenses which now are sold at one dollar each.

What a Break

Fellowsville, W. Va.—You should have seen the scramble in Fellowsville yesterday when a freight truck, with marbles aboard was wrecked, just as school let out. Kids came from everywhere and the owners didn't seem to mind so the boys scooped up "megs" and "shooters" by the pocketful.

Understanding Children

Chicago—Looking over 1,000 letters addressed to Santa Claus, assistant Postmaster John T. McGrath found that most children are asking for food and clothing for their parents and themselves, whereas they used to petition for toys.

Accommodating Judge

Seattle—Superior Judge Alex Caplan is going apartment hunting to prove to a divorce-seeking wife she can live more cheaply.

Counsel for Mrs. Anna Greenbaum, mother of two children, contended she had to pay $47 a month for an apartment. A larger allowance than the $50 granted her monthly pending the hearing of her suit was sought.

"The allowance will stand at $50," Judge Caplan ordered, "and I'll find them a less expensive apartment myself."

Luckless Student

Beloit, Wis.—No black cats have walked across William Clark's path, but:

A negro robber stabbed him and took $10 as he walked across the campus of Beloit College, where he is a student.

His ankle was injured in a football game.

The ankle gave way in his room and he fell on the floor, injuring his skull.

And now the latest news is that he encountered a burglar in his room, receiving from the intruder a bullet wound in the shoulder.

Tell-Tale Lisp

Philadelphia—It was quite simple, my dear Watson, once police learned that Edward Bruner lisped. He was arrested after detectives had spent weeks trying to find what happened to expense money a trucking company sent to its drivers at their telegraphed requests. The telegrams, it was found, were sent by a man who lisped and officials of the trucking company recalled a former employe with such an impediment of speech. It was Bruner.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, Dec. 13—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Morris and son, Alfred, Jr., are visiting Mr. Morris's parents in Bloomsburg.

The Men's Club of the M. E. Church will meet Friday, December 16, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Matthew Clark and daughter, Genevieve, former residents of this village now living in Newton Hook, who were recently hurt in an automobile accident, are much improved and getting along very nicely.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Nathan Cole of Second street.

Prayer meeting will be held this week at the parsonage.

Walter Fallon of Buffalo and New York city is spending a few days at his home on Second street.

Mrs. Edward Anderson and Mrs. Katherine Wells, who occupy the Gurney Homestead on Plantasia avenue and Third street, have returned from a trip upstate, visiting relatives in Ilion.

The snow of Sunday covered the village, and it did not take the children long to start their sleds a-going for real old time coasting.

The community extends its sympathy to the bereaved family of the late John U. Gillette, school district superintendent. He was well known and highly respected in this village.

Happy Is This Man—Loses 26 Pounds of Fat In 3 Months

No More Gasping For Breath

Mr. F. J. Fritz of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "I've tried extreme dieting, setting up exercises with little results. But the results from Kruschen Salts are almost incredible. In 3 months I reduced from 205 to 179 pounds and feel stronger than ever—no more wheezing or gasping for breath—friends say I look 100% better." (Jan. 7, 1932.)

The safe, sensible way to lose fat is to take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

While losing fat you gain in vigor, energy and ambition because Kruschen keeps stomach, liver and kidneys functioning naturally and bowels free from waste, acids and poisons.

But demand and get Kruschen—a jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at McBride Drug Stores or any drugstore in the world—of course cutting down on fat meats, pastry, cream and butter will hasten reduction but NO RIGID DIET IS NECESSARY.

Canadian Masonic History

An Apple a Day

New York State's apple crop this year is estimated at 20,000,000 bushels. Thousands of bushels will rot because of a lack of sufficient consumer demand. Take advantage of the situation—use the apple recipes which will appear in each issue of this paper—cut them out for future reference.

HOT APPLE SANDWICH

Cover a slice of toasted bread with a thick layer of heavy apple sauce. Place two slices of bacon on top of the sauce, and put in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp. Serve at once.

APPLE SAUCE

If a fine, smooth sauce is desired, the apples are cooked in clear water until soft. They may be put through a strainer or crushed with a spoon, and sugar added, and are not cooked at all after this. If the finished product is to show the apples in pieces or sections, a sirup is first made by boiling the sugar and water until the sirup coats the spoon. The apples are then added and cooked until clear. Serve with rich cream.

These recipes are compiled by the experts of the New York State College of Home Economics, at Cornell University, Ithaca, and others, and are made available through Consumers Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

CITIES, STATES CUT TAXES $800,000,000

Retrenchment Is Forced by Municipal Drives.

Washington.—As the result of drives in larger cities and political subdivisions throughout the country on state and local taxes, the bill has been reduced more than $500,000,000 annually from the high point, it was disclosed by a special committee report of the United States Chamber of Commerce embracing a nation-wide survey.

If the lesser governmental units which have made little or no retrenchment follow the same course, the report indicated, another saving of $300,000,000 can be effected without impairment of efficiency, while if all the states were brought back to the 1926 level the cut would be $2,000,000,000. The committe estimated that two-thirds of government costs result from state and local taxation.

Specific steps to accomplish this purpose were recommended by the committee, headed by Junius P. Fishburn, president of the Times-World corporation, Roanoke, Va., and will be brought to the attention of business organizations throughout the country.

"Definite and substantial progress in the reduction of the routine expenditures of state and local governments," the report said, "comes from every section of the country. In many places where actual reductions have not yet been made, definite economy measures are pending.

"The steady increase in the intensity of the public demand that taxes be reduced is significant. Much of this demand, however, and much of the activity of new agencies advocating tax reduction, are directed at the large expenditures of the Federal government. This may tend to obscure the urgent need for general reduction of state and local expenditures.

"Our information upon the fiscal problems of state governments indicates that a number of them are facing acute taxation difficulties. Many are called upon to deal with deficits caused by a shrinkage in revenues, notwithstanding reductions in expenditures. In a few states the administrative authorities, vested with power to curtail expenditures radically as deficits impended, have acted so as to preserve a balance between income and outgo. Other states, however, are not so fortunate in their governmental organization."

300,000 Canadians Quit U. S. for Native Land

Montreal.—More than 300,000 Canadians who went to the United States in search of better conditions, have returned to the dominion in the last eight years, it was learned at the Immigration department. Of these, 262,580 were Canadian-born and about 24,000 were British subjects with Canadian domicile. The peak of the movement back to Canada was reached in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1927, and, curiously, the smallest number of Canadians have come home since the depression set in.

Information received by the Department of Immigration shows that the number of Canadian-born persons in the United States last counted is 1,278,421, an increase of only 153,496 in ten years. Of these, 370,852 are French-Canadians and 907,569 are Canadians of British, German and other racial origin.

The foreign born population of the United States was given as 13,366,407, an increase of only 111,013 in ten years. There was a decrease in the English, Welsh and Irish people in the United States, but an increase of 39 per cent in the number of Scots. The report also shows there were in the republic 735,307 persons whose father or both parents were French-Canadians and 1,323,617 whose father or both parents were of other races born in Canada.

Official Has Decoration but He Cannot Wear It

New Orleans, La.—Because Uncle Sam says a government employee cannot accept a foreign decoration, Edwin Kirwin, customs inspector here, is kept from wearing the Palmes d'Academie which he received from the consul general of France in New Orleans two years ago.

He never has been able to wear the decoration, awarded for his searches and study of French antiquities, because soon after he received it the government locked it up in a safe in Washington.

"For two years I have tried to get it back," said Kirwin, who has made a study of antiques for 30 years. "The only way they'll return it is through an act of congress. There's a regulation that prohibits a government employee from accepting a foreign decoration."

Kirwin received the decoration July 14, 1930. It is his duty to examine all imported antiquities to determine if they are dutiable.

Motorists Spend Two Billion on Vacations

Washington.—American motorists paid a bill of $2,000,000,000 for vacations with automobiles, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile association. The expenses consisted of car operating costs, including gasoline and oil, $400,000,000; miscellaneous retail purchases, $500,000,000; restaurants, $420,000,000; confections, $120,000,000, and amusements, $160,000,000.

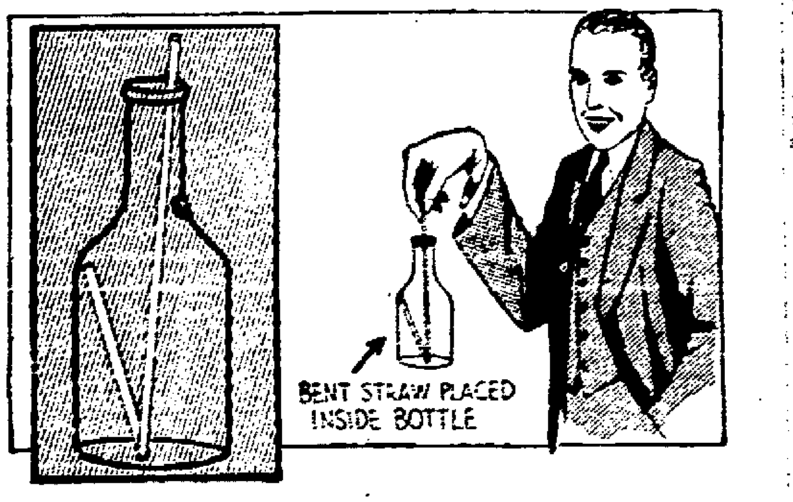
TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will L. Lindhorst

HOW TO LIFT BOTTLE WITH SODA STRAW



BENT STRAW PLACED INSIDE BOTTLE

A bottle with wide "hips," like the one shown above, should be used in this trick. Take the bottle and a soda straw before your audience, and ask if anyone can lift the bottle with the straw. If no one volunteers, you take the straw, stand it alongside the bottle and dent it where it touches the bottle's "hip." Bend it there, and place this end inside the bottle, where it will act as a hook, catching under the "hip" on one side. You can then grasp the other end of the straw and easily lift the bottle.

CASH SETTLEMENT

According to a Washington correspondent for the New York Times, several members of the United States Senate have been discussing a plan for solution of the war debt problem along these lines:

1. Acceptance by the United States of a lump sum, tentatively placed at $1,000,000,000, in satisfaction of all war debts owed to us, the money to be raised by an international loan floated by the debtor countries, part of which might be marketed in the United States.

2. Granting of trade concessions to the United States by the debtor countries in any form which would assure better markets for American products.

3. Substantial reduction of armaments by the debtor nations, to the end that both they and the United States be saved unnecessary expense, a concession calculated to satisfy the popular demand in this country.

There is nothing new in these ideas in themselves. The significant thing is that they should be seriously considered in the United States Senate, the treaty-making branch of Congress, at this time when the general cry at Washington is for debt payment on the existing basis. The billion of cash, it is suggested, along with a little more economy in government expenditures, would balance the budget. As for the principle of debt collection in full, which most of the statesmen at Washington insist publicly on applying literally, quite a few of them are said to admit privately that they "would take whatever they could get for the debt."

BRIDGE-BUILDING

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant and economist, addressing an audience of engineering students, says our business leaders are like gangs of bridge-builders working on the two sides of a river toward the middle, without any co-ordinated plan, merely trusting to luck to come together and make a unified structure. Often the gangs don't come together, or make a poor junction, and the bridge falls.

"They built up a wonderful system of production," he says, "and they figured out that somebody would probably be inspired to build up a system of distribution. And when it did dawn upon these leaders that the two systems were really parts of the whole system, it was only to discover that there was a third system, without which neither production nor consumption could be carried on. That was the financial system. It was in the hands of financiers—expert financiers; only they did not know what finance was for."

His idea, apparently, is that what finance is for is to see that the goods are distributed, that production and consumption are balanced. There will certainly have to be more team work hereafter.

EINSTEIN AND THE LADIES.

The Boston ladies who asked the government to bar Professor Albert Einstein from this country, as a "dangerous radical" and "undesirable alien" when he comes to accept a mathematics professorship at Princeton let themselves in for unexpected trouble. The learned little Herr Doktor came back with this smiling comment: "Give heed to the dear, wise, patriotic ladies, and remember that the capitol of mighty Rome was saved at one time by the cackling of her faithful geese." He said more, but that is enough for the purpose. Anyone who does not know the bit of Roman history referred to may find it worth looking up.

As for the charge that this little philosopher-mathematician with the brain of a Newton is a menacing Red, a member of Communist groups and under the thumb of Moscow, the ladies seem to be somewhat confused. Einstein in his personal views is admittedly a Socialist and pacifist, as was our own Steinmetz—a fact which has nothing to do with the man's mission to America. And the Socialists, as it happens, are not only different from the Communists but are today the chief bulwark against them—a buffer party between Communism and Capitalism. The ladies had their facts wrong.

THE BICYCLE AGE.

It may be the automobile age in America, but it's still the bicycle age in Europe. Or perhaps we should say not "still" but "again". The demand for bicycles has been increasing there since the depression.

The extent to which the footpower machine is used abroad is almost incredible. A world census the first of this year showed nearly 26,000,000 automobiles in the United States to 1,500,000 bicycles. In Europe the figures ran the other way, 40,000,000 bicycles to 5,600,000 automobiles. The ratio here is seventeen automobiles to one bicycle, and over there it is seven bicycles to one automobile. Holland alone, the size of Maryland, has a million more bicycles than our own country. In Germany there are 19 bicycles to every four-wheeled car. In all the cities of Europe the streets swarm with "bikes". In Copenhagen, where cyclists have special privileges, they are such a pest that street traffic is almost destroyed and motor traffic operates under a big handicap.

Last year our own manufacture of bicycles was still decreasing, but this year it seems to have started upward again. There is new interest in six-day bicycle races, with shows of this sort touring the country after successful openings in New York. Are we coming into a new bicycle age?

HELPING THE MIDDLE AGED.

So anxious have physicians been to preserve the lives of babies and young children that it would seem that they have forgotton that a grown man or woman who has reached middle age is likely worth more to his family and to the community than the small child.

However this matter of preserving the lives of the middle aged is now receiving a great deal of attention.

Why do so many middle aged individuals die just at the height of their physical and mental perfection?

Because a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, and a weakness in any one of the vital organs—heart, lungs, bloodvessels, kidneys or brain—may cause collapse and death.

Can the middle aged individual by giving thought to his physical condition do anything to preserve his health? Your doctor will tell you that care and thought at this time will be the best investment in life, and that this care and thought does not mean hard and fast rules to take the joy out of life.

Naturally, the first thought is about food, and where the individual is overweight or there is a tendency toward overweight, cutting down on the entire food intake is the first precaution that must be taken. Overweight puts a strain on heart, bloodvessels and kidneys.

If there is no tendency to overweight, where underweight is well marked, and blood thin, real nourishing meals should be eaten to keep up the strength of the body. Cream, butter and leafy vegetables added to the ordinary diet are absolutely necessary.

All physicians are agreed that meat, salt and condiments help to "age" the bloodvessels and kidneys, so that these must be greatly cut down. Fresh air and exercise are absolutely esential but tennis, and badminton are too strenuous at this age, unless they have been played regularly during the stage from young manhood to middle age. Golf, swimming and walking are ideal forms of exercise at this time.

Rest is essential—complete relaxation of mind and body. Mental strain does more damage than physical strain or work.

So if middle aged, take hold of yourself. Don't worry about what you should or should not do. Let your physician and dentist examine you, and then try to observe the above simple suggestions.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Dec. 13—Miss Katherine Eaton and brother, Horace, spent a few days the early part of the week in Hudson, N. Y., visiting friends.

$ Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams • Author of "[illegible]"

SYNOPSIS: The law firm of Quentin, Lodely & Cane is about to crash. Lodely is a typical English "country gentleman," Quentin a bookish and retiring man of good breeding, Cane the office boy who has worked up to a partnership. It is Cane who has done the work of the firm. He and Lodely quarrel; he stormily orders Lodely out of his apartment, which is above the firm's offices, on the old York Market of the town of Kings Mallard. Then he [illegible] his [illegible] wife to call their [illegible] Leila.

Chapter 2

ANNIE TAKES A MESSAGE

Mrs. Quentin and Mrs. Lodely endured each other.

"LIKE to come up to Mrs. Quentin's with me?" asked Mr. Cane. "You can play with little Barbara while I'm busy with her father."

"They said at school yesterday that Mr. Quentin was dead," returned the child pertly.

"Well, he isn't, not yet. Don't you try and teach me my business, miss."

It seemed to him, in his sour anger, that he would do anything, take any chance that remained to him, to build up again the fortune that had been snatched from his eager grasp.

"I'm ready, daddy."

He followed the child down the stairs and out of the house.

Mrs. Cane began to cry as the door of the house closed upon them. She remembered her pride at having married a solicitor, even if he wasn't, in the Kings Mallard sense of the word, a gentleman. If only he would consent to hide with her in some big city where nobody knew them!

She sat sniffing damply for nearly half an hour and was about to go in search of a strong cup of tea when her maid approached her, thumbing an envelope. Mrs. Cane threw up her hands.

"How many times have I told you, Annie, to bring in letters on a tray? And if it's a telegram—yes, I see it is—you'll simply have to get on your things and take it after Mr. Cane. He's told me that he wants all telegrams brought to him at once, wherever he is."

"And where he master to, then, ma'am?"

"Gone up to see Mr. Quentin on Upper Mallard hill. He'll be walking slowly, he has Miss Leila with him. If you hurry, you may overtake him yet."

In a garden full of late roses, Mrs. Quentin and Mrs. Lodely sat enduring each other.

Mrs. Lodely endured Mrs. Quentin as the wife of her husband's senior partner, as an unsociable neighbor and as a bookish, reserved woman whom in years she would never learn to know. Mrs. Quentin endured Mrs. Lodely simply as a noise; a maddening noise that persisted somewhere beyond the circle of her dedicated thoughts.

"Do change places with me," urged Mrs. Lodely for the third time. "You ought to be relaxin' comfortably after not sleepin' at all for two nights."

"Thank you, but I would rather not move," refused Mrs. Quentin, also for the third time. "I can see Lionel's window from here and as soon as the nurse draws up the blind it will mean he is awake and wanting me and I must run in. If you will excuse me."

Mrs. Lodely muttered sympathetically and lit another cigarette. She wished she could remember that this was a house lying under the shadow of death, but Lionel Quentin had been so many months dying and the disaster of the firm's collapse seemed so much more actual. In spite of herself she burst out with—

"What I want to know is, what are we goin' to do? I mean, all Sam and I have got is my little income that I've been spendin' on myself. It won't go anywhere. Why, it isn't three hundred a year and Mark's doctor's fees have come to nearly that before now!"

"Still, you are fortunate in having it," said Mrs. Quentin, her eyes upon the distant window.

"Haven't you—you don't mind my askin'—haven't you anything at all of your own?"

"Nothing. Less, even, than Lionel thinks."

"How d'you mean?"

"I mean that I lied to him the other day," explained Mrs. Quentin, her dark head still motionless against the back of the seat. "You see, I once had a young cousin, a reckless, lovable boy. A few years before his death he needed a loan and he insisted on giving me as part security some shares he held in a South African enterprise. Oh, I think I saw nurse beckoning! No, it's only the shadow of the apple-tree."

"Was it a gold-mine?" Mrs. Lodely gave the short, high laugh with which she usually covered embarrassment and interest.

"I'm afraid not. Mr. Cane is very kindly having enquiries made in Johannesburg, but he confessed that at first glance the shares appeared to him practically worthless. Nevertheless, I have told Lionel that I managed to dispose of them for five hundred. It has eased his mind a great deal."

"But how long does he think that will last you, with a child to keep? Or shall you send Barbara back to your sister in France?"

"No, he wishes me to keep her with me, after he is gone. And the money, he thinks, will give me time to clear things up and look 'round a little. You must remember that his mind is clouded, now, so near the end."

Mrs. Lodely, who never thought anything worth discussion, agreed absently. She smoked, stared at her hostess and presently burst again into protest.

"My trouble is, I don't really understand what's happened. 'Tisn't as if either your husband or mine had ever had a crooked thought in their lives, bless 'em! They did what they thought right—it was that beast Black let them down—"

"It seems they trusted him too blindly. They placed most of the Armitage fortune, for instance, in his hands, against securities that were afterwards discovered to be forgeries. Naturally, they feel accountable. They are accountable."

Mrs. Lodely snorted.

"Well, you may think so and the law may say so but I don't care, I don't agree. Payin' back all that Armitage money out of our private pockets is lunacy, I say. It'll be years before that kid—what was his name? Farrell?—before young Farrell Armitage comes of age."

Mrs. Quentin did not pursue the financial argument.

"The vicar misses Farrell terribly, I believe," she said. "He had him in his charge for a whole year, wasn't it? Oh hello!"

"It's Cane," said Mrs. Lodely. "Just turning into the drive."

Forrest T. Stauffer, golf professional at the Barton Hills course, Ann Arbor, Mich, sank his first hole-in-one on the 145-yard No. 5 hole at 10 o'clock on the morning of September 13, 1930. A year later to the day and hour, and using the same club, a spade mashie, he faced the same hole. Both shots were made on the fly, as neither ball touched the fairway or the green on its flight from the tee to the cup. The green is about four feet higher than the tee and is entirely surrounded by sand traps.

William Penn, the great apostle of peace would be about the last man on earth one would expect to find sitting in full armour for a portrait—but strange as it seems, his only authentic portrait shows him thus attired.

Penn was a dashing young cavalier when he posed for the portrait. When he became a Quaker he refused to sit for a painting.

Tips on CONTRACT

A Double Psychic.

By TOM O'NEIL

Whatever the demerits of psychics, they give a great thrill when successful.

When a vulnerable opening bidder offers something he doesn't have and his partner, not realizing that the start of the auction was deception, puts in another psychic, there is likely to be a heavy penalty.

Instead of such a result, a daring and lucky double-barrelled psychic gave a big swing to Charles O. Wood and partner in a rubber game at the Deschapelles Club, New York.

In a game contract at spades, redoubled and vulnerable, Wood's partner took all the tricks but one after Wood began the auction with one heart, although he had no hearts at all. The adversaries had an easy game in hearts. Here was the hand:

NORTH
♥9873
♦964
♣A2

WEST
♠A2
♥AK64
♦AQJ3
♣AJ107

EAST
♠64
♥QJ1052
♦10875
♣65

SOUTH
WOOD DEALER
♠108755
♥NONE
♦K2
♣KQ9843

Wood lacked the quick trick strength for an opening bid, vulnerable or non-vulnerable, but he feared the opponents might have a game in hearts. Having a club suit for refuge in case squalls should develop, he boldly bid one heart.

West doubled, having more than the necessary strength for the purpose. A double was the best thing for him to employ at the time, since he had no long suit. It would have resulted in a game contract or a strength pass by east but for north leaping into the battle with two spades, one more than necessary.

North reasoned from the double and the looks of his own cards that west and east had game possibilities. He thought if he made a forcing takeout over the double, east would be deterred from bidding. East was scared into a pass.

South was delighted at the force and promptly assisted the spades to three. After a pass by west, north was a bit fearful of his bluff force and bid four hearts, not suspecting the opening psychic. East passed as usual and south went to four spades. West doubled and north and east passed. After due consideration of the distributional strength of his hand south redoubled.

East led a heart, and it was trumped in the south hand. The ace of spades was then forced out. West here could have taken his ace of diamonds, but decided, rather than to set up the king, to force dummy's trumps. He led another heart. After ruffing it in the south hand the declarer led the ace of clubs and back to the king of clubs. After the enemies' last trump was taken out three diamonds were discarded from the north hand on South's clubs.

No possible defense could have prevented west and east from an easy game in hearts. It would have taken more nerve than what was required for the psychics for north and south to have started bidding spades had the opposition opened the auction with hearts.

MRS. G. W. ROSS, Commissioner.
MISS MILDRED H. EATON, Director.

Gardiner Troop: We are still busy training our new members for their Tenderfoot test. We older members are studying for our First Class. Miss Dorothy Flemming came to our meeting one afternoon recently, and taught us singing. We learned a very pretty song, "Home on the Range". We have also learned some interesting new games, brought in by various members. For the past few meetings our lieutenants, Miss Marie Rinehart and Miss Mary Tubbs, have taken charge of the meetings. This is something new to us and we have enjoyed it very much. Scribe, Betty Jayne.

Daffodil Troop, No. 8, Kingston: A meeting of the Daffodil Troop was held on Tuesday. We had lots of fun practising the play we are going to give soon. Sang Taps and said goodnight. Scribe, Rosalind Kreppel.

Port Ewen Troop: We called our meeting at 7:15 and discussed business. We then had patrol corners. Afterward we had some first aid, learning to put on a sling, bandage a sprained ankle, and give other simple first aid treatment. After playing several games, we closed the meeting with a goodnight circle. Scribe, Carolyn Munn.

Wild Rose Troop, No. 7, Kingston: On Tuesday, Troop 7 met at School No. 2, at 4. When everybody arrived we went into patrol corners, collected dues, and had a talk with our patrol leaders. While some were learning the compass, and others were teaching knots and Girl Scout Laws to those who are to become Tenderfoots, the patrol leaders were talking together. Then we acted out the Girl Scout Laws, each patrol dramatizing several of them. The meeting closed with songs, Taps, and goodnight circle. Scribe, Rose Helen Mellert.

NOTORIOUS SPY IS NOW TIBETAN MONK

No More Adventures for Trebitsch-Lincoln.

Berlin. — Ignas Trebitsch-Lincoln, Europe's most colorful adventurer, hated and elusive spy during the World war, one time member of the English house of commons, rabbi, bishop of the Church of England, press chief of the Kapp Putsch in Germany, intimate associate of Trotzky in Russia, adviser of Amanullah, found wherever a revolution is brewing, today is walking the streets of Berlin dressed in the long, peaceful robe of a Tibetan lama of Buddah.

Every newspaper man on four continents, every detective, in dozens of cities has at one time or other been either inspired or fooled or amused by Trebitsch-Lincoln. Dyed in the wool news gatherers tell wild stories about him. For Trebitsch-Lincoln at one time devoted himself to adventure with the air of a fanatic, a man out for revenge on a civilization that killed his son as a spy, although he hastened from thousands of miles away to save him.

Escaped Death Many Times.

There is hardly a nation that he has not served and there is no country he has not visited. He has tangled with Colonel Lawrence of Arabian fame. He has been hunted like a dog by leading politicians. He has escaped the noose, the bullets of a firing squad, and the guillotine by inches.

Berlin correspondents met Trebitsch when he was press chief of the "Kapp" government, when this ruled Prussia for a few days. They fought with him about freedom of the press. Later when the adventurer was being sought by the police, a correspondent refused to reveal Trebitsch's whereabouts and thus helped him escape. It was a rather tense moment when a bearded man stepped into the newspaper office just a few minutes after a detective had called looking for Trebitsch, and the man said: "Don't you recognize me? I'm Trebitsch." Ten minutes later another detective marched in. "We know you know where Trebitsch-Lincoln is. We'll pay a high price if you'll speak." But the newspaper force did not speak and Trebitsch-Lincoln was not heard of in Germany for years.

There is the story of his stumbling into a German camp on the bleak plains of Lithuania, during the war. He was arrested and would have been shot, had not the German general peeped into the bottle a bit that night, and been feeling too gay for a court martial. Trebitsch was bundled into an airplane, and dropped miles out on No Man's Land. He was heard of next in Petrograd.

Gives Aid to Kapp.

When the Kapp Putsch was brewing Trebitsch was in China, a country that has always appealed to him because of its transcendental mysticism. But he managed to get back to Germany and put his services at disposal of "Chancellor" Kapp.

During the war he served more than one nation, his enemies declare.

Recently the colorful character had disappeared. Nobody knew what had become of him. In reality he was in Tibet, was actually made a priest by the nation that is most reluctant to make friends—the Tibetians.

And suddenly he is again in Berlin, to the utter and whole-hearted delight of all lovers or adventure. He wears the little black round cap of the Tibet priests, his black silk coat comes up high under his chin, his feet are clad in sandals. He is recognized by all those in the political and social swim. And he is not loathe to be recognized. But he will not shake hands. His high dignity as a priest of Buddah forbids him to touch ordinary human beings.

He is not here to devote himself to political intrigue, or to mere financial undertakings. It is his present ambition, his only ambition, according to his own words, to build in southern Germany a Buddhist temple and a monastery for devotees. He does not yet have the devotees. But he is certain that there are many who will prefer the peace and mental harmony of the Buddhist faith to the turmoil of present-day life. He admits he has no money, but he is certain faith will move some one to endow the organization he is planning.

POMONA GRANGE HELD MEETING AT MT. TREMPER.

Mt. Tremper, Dec. 13.—Mt. Tremper Grange was the host for the Ulster County Pomona Grange for its regular December session on December 2.

The meeting began at 10:30 and was opened in due form. Worthy Master Harold V. Story presiding. The opening song was "Sun of My Soul."

Worthy Master Carle, of Mt. Tremper Grange, spoke a few words of greeting and gave the members a most hearty welcome. Brother Kenneth Tabor, overseer of Pomona, responded graciously with well chosen words.

Sister Jenkins, Pomona lecturer, gave her report on the bicentennial celebration held in the Highland Grange Hall in October. She said as nearly as could be counted about 325 attended and nearly every Grange took part. The county prize speaking contest which took place at that time was won in the junior class by William Spencer, first, and Mabel Story, second. The senior class winners were Marjorie Morehouse, first, and Emmaetta Jansen, second.

The treasurer reported having received $50 from the fair for the exhibit which was made by the Pomona lecturer and service and hospitality committee.

Silver certificates were given for members of Lake Katrine and Stone Ridge Granges.

Letters of sympathy were sent to Sister Weaver and Sister Sears in their illnesses. Pomona wishes them speedy recovery.

Owing to the inclement weather there were only 25 present at the masters and lecturers' conference held in Plattekill. The lecturer's work was discussed.

Brother Kurdt, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, suggested that speakers for Grange meetings could be supplied by the cooperation of the Farm Bureau. When a state speaker is in the county he could also be available for Grange meetings while here.

Sister Nance, manager of the Ulster County Home Bureau, gave her report. She said only two Granges entered the dramatic contest this year. Patroon and Plattekill. She urged the Grangers not to give up dramatics but to begin earlier next year and all enter the contest. She spoke of the work of the women in the county in the reconditioning and refinishing of old furniture, about 150 pieces of furniture have been completed. Approximately $1,000 has been realized from the sale of articles at the Rural Women's Market.

On Friday, December 16, at 2 p. m., at the Kingston Gas and Electric office, Miss Nance will repeat the lesson, "Winter Bouquets," for the women of the county who are interested.

The following resolutions were adopted:

1. To the Ulster County Board of Supervisors: We, as officers and members of the Ulster County Pomona Grange, respectfully ask the Ulster county board of supervisors to provide for the submission of the tax roll and budget of Ulster county to the taxpayers at a public hearing before final adoption.

2. To the Senator and Assemblyman of Ulster County: We, as officers and members of Pomona Grange, respectfully ask our state senator and assemblyman to work for and support a bill for the reduction of the license fee for light trucks and the ½ year license for farm trucks.

3. To the New York State Grange: We, as officers and members of the Ulster County Pomona Grange, ask for favorable action on the request of Orange County Pomona Grange, to hold the 1934 State Grange session in Newburgh, N. Y.

Brother Clark stated that the State Horticultural Society would meet in Kingston on December 26, 27 and 28, and urged all to attend. There will be a speaking contest by the 4-H and Future Farmers members.

Motion was made that a committee be appointed to cooperate with the Horticultural Society contest committee, and to take care of all contests for young people. Brother Clark, Sisters Jenkins and Everett appointed on the committee.

The next meeting the the Masters and Lecturers' Association will be held in Huguenot Grange Hall, New Paltz.

Sister Auchmoody, chairman of the county service and hospitality committee, gave a short report, and thanked all the chairmen for their cooperation.

Sister Auchmoody read Deputy Weaver's and Sister Weaver's annual reports.

Worthy Master Story welcomed the worthy deputy of Dutchess county, Brother George D. Halstead, and Sister Halstead, who brought greetings from Dutchess county.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY PAST GRANDS ASSOCIATION

Bearsville, Dec. 13.—On Saturday evening, December 10, the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Past Grands Association of Ulster District was held in Bearsville I. O. O. F. Hall. About 40 members were present and one candidate received into membership. As this was the annual election of officers, the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year, in order that they might carry on the work which had been begun by Brother Shultis. President, Bradley M. Shultis of Bearsville; first vice president, Fred Dolson of Gardiner; second vice president, Charles Sickler of Port Ewen; recording secretary, Sydney A. Johnson, Kingston; financial secretary, Newton Van Etten of Kingston; treasurer, J. M. Rogers, G. M., of West Saugerties.

This had also been announced as ladies' night and at the close of the business session a goodly crowd of ladies, who had assembled downstairs, were invited into the assembly room and all were entertained by a short play given by members of Colonial Rebekah Lodge. They then adjourned to the banquet hall where a social hour was held during which dancing was enjoyed with music by a four-piece orchestra from Kingston and refreshments were served by the past grands of the host lodge, Bearsville, No. 533, assisted by members of Agapae Rebekah Lodge.

A class of four candidates were recently initiated in Bearsville Lodge. They will journey to Saugerties where the first degree will be conferred and on Friday evening they will receive the second degree in the home lodge.

Sapphire's Many Shapes

Sapphires occur in such igneous rocks as granites, syenites, rhyolites especially in rocks rich in aluminum, and also in metamorphosed strata associated with tourmaline, spinel and garnets. In the natural state, says Nature Magazine, they may be either double pyramidal hexagons or six-sided, barrel-shaped crystals or water-rolled, rounded pebbles. These gems are, next to the diamond, the hardest of all natural substances.

GREYHOUND Lines

If home is where the heart is, then some boys are never home except when they're at a pretty girl's house.

Jimmy (aged six)—Say, mother dear, does God see everything?

Mother—Why, yes, dearest.

Jimmy—Even the little things we do around the house, in the kitchen, halls and dining-room?

Mother—Yes, everything.

Jimmy (after a few moments of silence)—Gee, I'd hate to be daddy.

Someone inquires, "Is there anything better than a pound of country sausage?" We can answer it the first rattle out of the box: "Yes, two pounds."

First Business Man—Thankful! What have to be thankful for? I can't pay my bills.

Second Business Man—Then, man alive, be thankful you aren't one of the creditors.

Correct This Sentence: "Yes, darling," said the mother, "if you are sure it's a stray dog, you may keep it."

Daughter—What is alimony, mother dear?

Mother (trained in life insurance office)—It's a man's cash surrender value, my dear.

The grocer was busily engaged attending the wants of his customers when he suddenly caught sight of a small boy gazing hard at a large crate of oranges.

Grocer—Now then, my lad, what are you up to?

Boy—Nothing.

Grocer—Nothing! Well, it looks to me as if you were trying to take one of those oranges.

Boy—You're wrong, mister. I'm trying not to.

The big thing confronting every man is not where he is, but in which direction he is moving.

Hubby—Did you see that charming girl smile at me?

His Wifey—The first time I saw you, I, too, had to smile.

The fellow who lays the cornerstone gets all the credit while somebody else does the work. Life is like that.

Woman—How did you like the barcarolle at the musicale last night?

Neighbor—I didn't stay for the refreshments.

It's a woman's privilege to forget her age—but heaven help the man who forgets her birthday.

Sandy (to his daughter)—Young McPherson has asked me for your hand, and I have consented.

Daughter—You dear old dad!

Sandy—So never mind going to the dentist now to have that tooth filled; wait until you are married.

When you hear the gong strike!

Minister—Who giveth this woman?

Bride's Father—I do. And now, folks, I wish to remind you that today's program is coming to you through the courtesy of Walter T. Campbell, father of the lovely bride and president of the Campbell Bushing and Winch Corporation, manufacturers of the Little Wonder Winches and Milady Dainty Bushings, at all hardware stores of the better sort.

Dad—What's the matter with Junior?

Mother—He has dug a hole in the yard and wants to bring it into the house.

We can't make ourselves happy by making others unhappy. Think.

We presume a lot more strength is required to be a freight handler than a shop lifter.

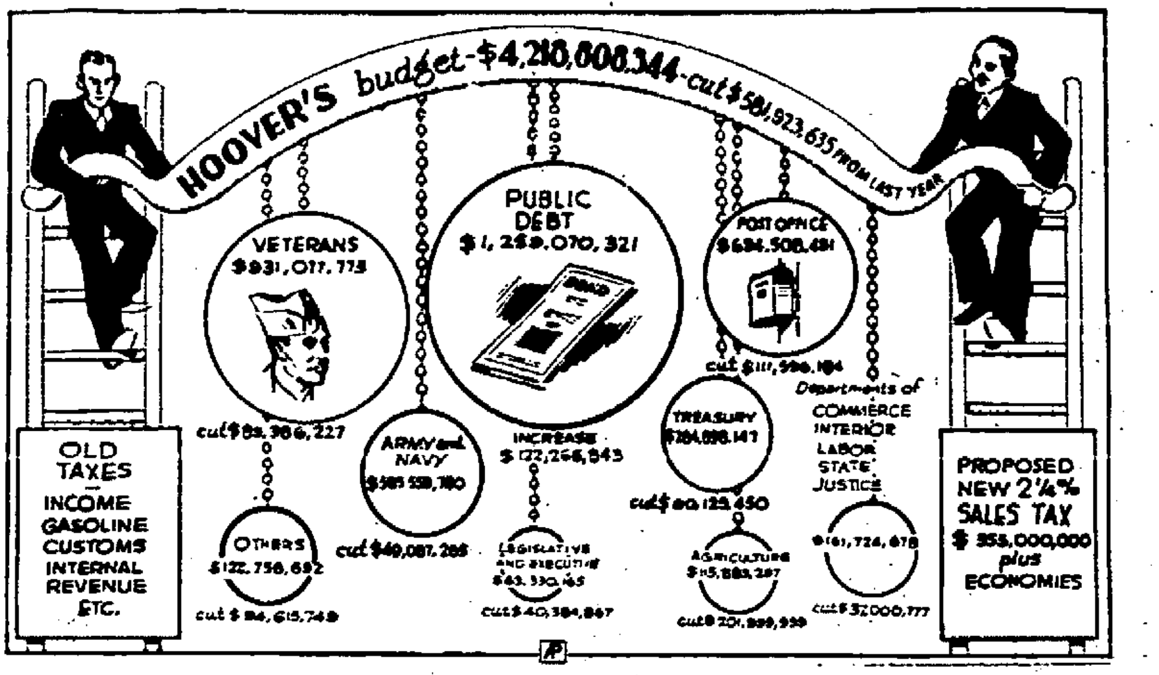
THE BUDGET ::

How Hoover Would Balance It And Where He Would Spend It



The budget balancing battle is on again in congress and it is likely to take up much of the time of the short session. The chart above shows how President Hoover's proposed budget would be spent, and where he would make cuts. It also shows where the President would get the funds for balancing federal accounts.

Washington (AP). — The nation, again in search of a balanced federal budget, will have to pay $355,000,000 of new taxes to obtain that balance, President Hoover has informed congress.

Only one new tax, the President suggests, will be needed for that purpose—a general uniform sales tax of 2¼ per cent on all items except food.

Sales Tax Previously Beaten

The general sales tax was defeated in congress at the last session by an uprising which took members from both parties away from plans of their leaders. The tax has been variously proposed by both parties and has received additional recommendation from many sources since the last attempt to effect it.

Passage of the tax, Secretary of the Treasury Mills has suggested, would make possible the elimination of a number of "the unsatisfactory and relatively unproductive" excise taxes now in force. Secretary Mills emphasizes that the sales tax would be imposed at the point of manufacture, avoiding the "inevitable pyramiding" of the tax imposed at the point of retail sale.

Would Cut Half Billion

The proposed administration budget calls for reductions of approximately $580,000,000 for the 1933-34 budget, or a total of $4,218,808,344. The President estimates that without the new tax and continuation of the gasoline tax the public debt will be increased by $307,000,000. It will be increased by $1,146,478,307 in the fiscal year ended June, 1933, the President estimates.

Principal savings proposed in the new budget are approximately $500,000,000 in construction items, $55,000,000 in salary cuts, and $89,000,000 in veterans' aid. These and other savings are partly offset by extra expenses to give the net reduction of $581,923,635.

Considerable opposition is expected to develop to reduction in veterans' benefits. Veterans' organizations are on record for payment of the bonus which would add some $2,000,000,000 to expenditures, to say nothing of accepting reductions.

The President's proposals are generally held to be extremely tentative in the minds of many congressmen, and vigorous battle is expected before conclusive determination of the new year's appropriations.

The net public debt, which was $19,225,000,000 at the end of the 1932 fiscal year, takes the lion's share of the budget, it getting $1,259,070,321 in principal and interest. Without new taxation, the debt may reach about $21,000,000,000 at the end of the 1934 fiscal year.

The post office comes in for a large appropriation of $694,508,491. This sum, however, is not raised by taxation since postal receipts are expected to total $627,000,000. The army and navy get $585,558,780.

The President expected actual amounts payable from the treasury will total $3,790,425,200, the difference between this amount and that appropriated being accounted for largely by postal receipts. The decline in expenditures by the treasury from the 1933 fiscal year will be $478,463,200, the President estimates.

Methodists Drinking Liquor Violate Vows

So Says Bishop Cannon, Jr., Testifying at House Committee Session in Opposition to Collier Bill.

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, bearing numerous resolutions opposing "legalization of the liquor traffic," told the House ways and means committee today that any member of his church who used intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes violated his church vows.

Appearing with a group of prohibitionists in opposition to the Collier bill, he testified after numerous questions had centered about this point.

Representative Treadway (R., Mass.) had asked a series of such questions of Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Cannon read numerous resolutions he said had been adopted within the last 30 days by different conferences of his church, and one from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America opposing either modification or repeal of the prohibition laws.

Drys Seek New Vote In "Lost States"

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—A decision to seek a new vote in states where prohibition laws were repudiated in the recent elections were made today by the National Board of Trustees of the Anti-Saloon League.

The vote will be sought whenever it is legally possible to regain the status of any and all dry laws hit by referenda.

The board met to draft general policy for the league in the fight against repeal or modification of dry laws.

The determination to have states vote again where they have upset prohibition laws is a return to dry strategy of 15 years ago when votes on prohibition were demanded by the drys as frequently as was legally possible.

TALLY PROVES CITY POPULAR WITH SHOPPERS

An actual tally of the number of people who visited the modern kitchen display, shown at the Rose & Gorman store during the past four weeks, showed that 8,562 visited the display. The display was shown by the store in cooperation with the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation. It was dismantled Monday in order to make room for the mammoth toy display being installed and which takes up every bit of available space on the floor. The model kitchen will be taken to Catskill for display there.

A comparison with the numbers who visited this display when shown in neighboring cities, emphasizes the superior advantages of Kingston as a shopping center and gives some idea of the extent to which people visit not only the Rose & Gorman store but the progressive stores of Kingston generally. One nearby city tallied a total of 4,700 visitors to the display when it was shown there and another, with much larger population, fell over 1,500 short of reaching the Kingston record, their total being 7,000.

SANTA AND THE MAGIC DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: Inga and Pinnocchio, two dolls from Toyland, are in search of a witch who has ruined Inga's beauty through a gold mirror which then helps Inga. A woods fairy helps them by disguising them as red foxes.

CHAPTER VIII.
THE WITCH'S CAVE.

Soon the woodland seem to disappear and the two dolls, disguised as red foxes, came to the stony mountain that they knew was the location to the cave of the bats where the witch lived.

There wasn't a tree or a shrub to hide them as they started up the hill. There were just great, ugly rocks about them.

"Wait," said Inga, and she sat down and held up the little mirror in front of her.

"Little mirror, where is the witch now?" she asked.

So Inga and Pinnocchio flooded the cave and the witch ran out right into the fire and was burned.

Immediately the face of the mirror showed the door to the cave and then it showed a dark passage inside, and finally a dark room lit only by a roaring fire. Next to it sat the old witch. All about her circled hundreds of huge bats.

"At least, she is inside," said Inga. "We must approach the cave without her seeing us."

So they started on again, creeping up the mountain and hiding behind rocks. Soon they were at the door of the cave. Quietly they slipped in and down the long passage. Just before they entered the room they hid the precious mirror and the little bottle of water the woods fairy had given them behind some rocks.

But when they looked into the witch's big room they were frightened. There were so many huge bats that they feared they would have to fight. And a bat has very sharp claws.

So they went back out into the corridor to lay plans.

"Let's spill that little bottle of water," said Pinnochio. "It will flood the whole room and they will be driven out."

"But it will also put out the fire, and a witch can only be killed by burning," said Inga.

"That's right," said Pinocchio, scratching his head. "I'll tell you what. I saw the embers of an old fire outside. We'll pile up wood for a huge fire in the passage. Then we'll spill water from our magic bottle into the witch's room. She will come running out this way, and just before she gets to our wood-pile we'll set fire to it and she will be caught."

That's just what they did. When the water started flooding the witch's room she and all her bats ran in terror out through the passage which was so dark and narrow that they did not see the fire until they ran right into it and burned. And that was the last of the witch.

"Now let's rub the coins the wood's fairy gave us," said Inga.

They did and immediately they lost their disguises as red foxes and became two little dolls again.

But here is the wonderful part of it: Inga wasn't the old, gray, wrinkled doll she had been, but the beautiful Inga that the fairy had bewitched in Santa's toyshop. She and Pinocchio were so happy that they clasped hands and danced right there.

Suddenly all about them the rocks changed form and there stood three or four hundred people and dolls and animals of the woods. They had all been bewitched at one time or another by the witch, and now Inga and Pinocchio had freed them.

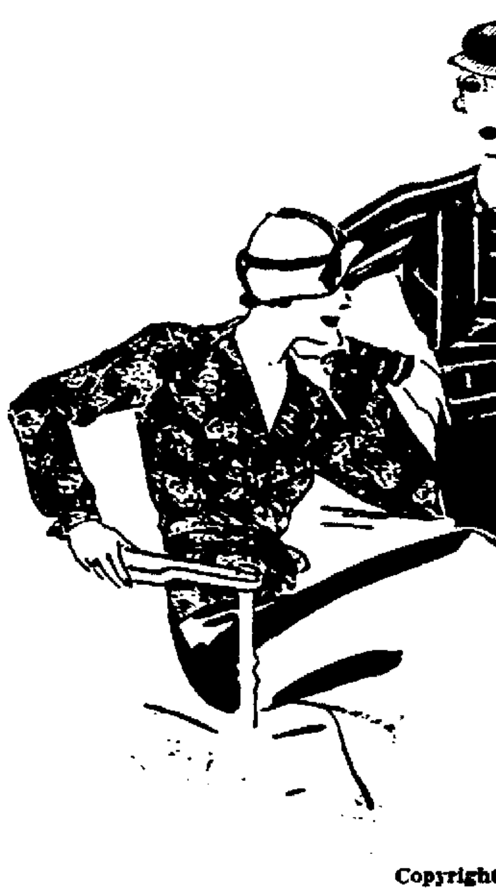
The Printed Blouse Remains



Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild.

The gaily colored "Roman stripe" printed silk offers variety to the more usual plaid. The model at right endorses a rough, heavy crepe.

An adaptation of a Persian print is another version of the patterned silk blouse, this blended multi-colored effect being considered for large sizes as well as youthful.

The Long-Sleeved Dinner Dress a Success

New York—The long-sleeved dinner frock is particularly good in combinations of fabrics, such as sheer metal cloths with rough crepe or velvet, two colors of velvet or two colors of satin, or dull and satin-surfaced silks together. The The dress may either touch the floor or be made up in afternoon length. A distinguishing point is a lower neckline than that seen in afternoon frocks, but not quite so low as is favored for evening.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Hyacinth is contrasted with purplish navy blue and black, also with a purplish brown.

Besides reds, the vivid blues, dark "Victorian" greens, wine reds and deep golden yellows are good colors.

Among novelty hair bows which make a bid for holiday trade is one tied so that it looks like rabbits ears. The two pointed ends stand up especially well in stiff crisp ribbons like moire.

Better Learn to Knit!

New York—It is not reasonable to suppose that the interesting knitted dresses, or those that appear to be knitted though actually woven, should pass out of our lives just as they are becoming indispensable. There are, besides hand-knitted dresses and suits, any number of novelty jersey effects, crinkled crepes and tweeds in which to do one's cruising in southern waters, or for other practical purposes.

Tweeds win the center of the picture in a consideration of new sports and town coatings. This is a color season and for sheer color beauty it's hard to beat the Scotch! Patterns are less significant than exotic but none the less lovely color mixtures.

Then, for that dress which must be dressy enough yet not too dressy—the one that may be worn under the tweed coat—there are crinkled crepes, openwork designs, crisp crepe matelasses in blistered allover patterning or cords and perfectly plain tulle weaves which play up two-tone effects.

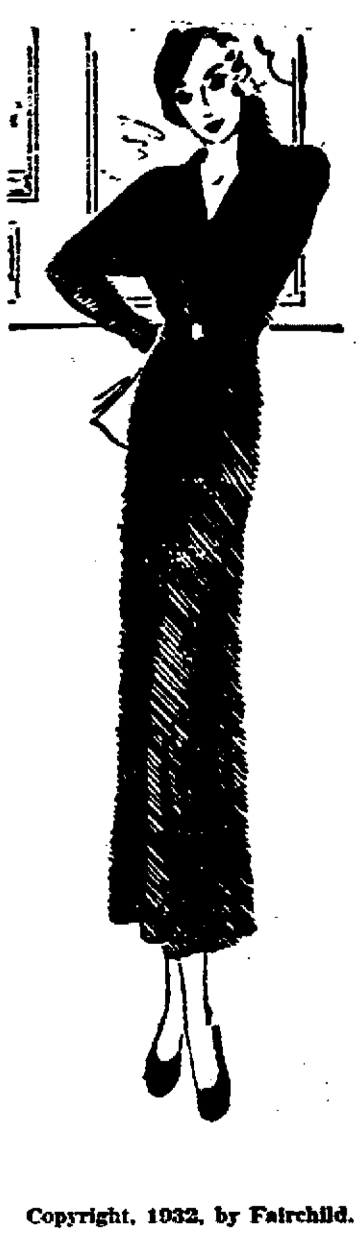
Blistered effects came in with autumn and give every promise of being with us until next autumn. Matelasse has an old-fashioned sound but it is a very new-fashioned weaving. Rather, it is made again new by those who design our clothes. The point seems to be that the fabric itself, as well as the color and cut of a costume, must pass muster on its own account.

If an all-knitted frock does not appeal to you, one with knitted or crocheted details should—and the yoke is the place to introduce them.

Colored Velvet Vies With Black

New York—Colored velvet evening wraps are receiving approval from fashionable New Yorkers, according to fashion observations made at "first nights," early season balls, the opera, and night clubs. Bright reds in varied tones seem especially popular and are most frequently worn with contrasting dresses. The newest-looking evening wraps are long and fitted, showing a few inches of the dress beneath. Also, there is a considerable vogue in New York for short colored velvet jackets which are worn over evening gowns and are not removed during the evening, even for dancing.

IN A GRAY MOOD



Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild.

This dress is developed in a novelty knitted fabric, the upper bodice brown and the rest of the frock in a gray tone. A gray suede belt indicates the waistline, and confines the jabot ends that develop from the V-shaped neckline.

The Greatest Gift of All

Dairylea Farms Use New Strainer Cloths Every Morning and Evening

On Dairylea farms, the milk is carefully strained immediately after each milking. And to assure the utmost cleanliness and purity, the strainer pads or cloths are used but once—then thrown away. This is but one of many precautions which are taken by the Dairymen's League to protect your milk where protection is most important—at its source on the farm.

ONE gift above all others you ask for your baby. It is the gift of good health . . . the gift of a body that grows straight and strong . . . the gift of sturdy resistance to the ills of childhood.

Through the Dairymen's League, 48,000 farmers contribute to that gift which, for your baby, you prize beyond comparison. More than anything else, your baby's health depends upon clean, pure, wholesome milk. And Dairylea brings to your baby the gift of extra protection for her daily milk supply—protection which no one farmer or small group of farmers could provide.

Dairylea's gift includes extra sanitary precautions which are used on our farms. It includes a large staff of dairy experts who supervise our farms and herds to see that these precautions are observed. It includes inspection of all Dairylea Milk at League-owned collecting stations and constant tests at League-owned laboratories. It includes immediate rejection of all milk which does not come up to Dairylea's higher standards—higher than those established by Boards of Health.

Your baby cannot appreciate the importance of this gift. But you, as a mother, will. If your milk comes from Dairylea farms, you can be sure you are giving your baby the finest, the purest, the best protected milk you can buy.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "The Mask of Fu Manchu." The thrilling novel of Sax Rohmer comes to the screen with a notable cast, some handsome scenery and fine direction. This time the plot concerns the struggles of several British scientists who seek the sword and mask of Genghis Kahn, only to be outwitted each time by the sinister Fu Manchu. Boris Karloff contributes another remarkable character portrayal in the role of Fu Manchu, and Karen Morley, Myrna Loy, Jean Hersholt, Lewis Stone and Charles Starrett are members of the cast. Entertaining melodrama.

Orpheum: "Manhattan Parade" and "The Gorilla Ship". A double feature offering, the first a comedy of New York with Winnie Lightner and the laugh team of Smith and Dale. The second talkie is one of those melodramatic tales of the high seas, filled with treachery and intrigue. Members of the cast include Vera Reynolds and Ralph Ince.

Broadway: "Blondie of the Follies." The Great White Way and what goes on behind the scenes of a musical comedy, are brought to the screen with song, romance and laughter by a cast that offers Marion Davies, Robert Montgomery, Billy Dove and Jimmy Durante. Miss Davies and Miss Dove are Follies Girls trying to get along in the world, and their troubles and struggles are all skillfully recorded for the entertainment of the audience. Robert Montgomery furnishes the romantic interest, and Marian Davies and Jimmy Durante prove to be an exceptionally gifted comedy team.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Faithless." A romance of business with Tallulah Bankhead in her best role to date, supported by Robert Montgomery and a distinguished cast. It's the story of a young business man in love with a wealthy girl. When the well remembered crash comes, he finds himself without money or job. The girl is also penniless. How they are united after bitterness and struggles is the plot basis of the picture.

Orpheum: "Public Enemy." James Cagney, Jean Harlow, Joan Blondell and Edward Woods are the principal players in this exciting and well acted melodrama of racketeers and their methods.

Broadway: "Breach of Promise." A different sort of plot, in which a small town girl sues a political candidate for breach of promise. There is a method in her madness, and the show offers a number of surprises before the curtain. Mae Clarke and Chester Morris are the featured players.

Ritz: "Age for Love" and "Mystery Train." Billie Dove is as beautiful as ever in this familiar story of a girl who seeks romance. "Mystery Train" is a thriller of the railroad business.

Spanish Dollars

"There are several types of Spanish American dollar size silver coins following the introduction of edge milling in the 1620s to the 1630s that may be classed as Spanish milled dollars," states the curator of the Chase National bank collection of moneys of the world, "but the ones that first came into common use in the states and in the Orient are believed to be those issued during Philip V's second reign, 1724 to 1726."

Heavy Guard of Troopers at Capital

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—A heavy guard of State Troopers was thrown about the huge and historic assembly chamber at the state capitol today just before the hearing on bills for the reduction of salaries of New York city policemen, firemen and teachers by $20,000,000, as part of the city's plan to reduce its budget by twice that amount.

Just off the assembly chamber, in the office of Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies, six men who called themselves "the workers" went into conference with the veteran Republican leader of the lower house on "demands" which they said they would make later to the state legislature as a whole.

The appearance of the stalwart, fur-hatted troopers recalled the Communist demonstration during the legislative session of 1931, when the troopers were compelled to wield clubs to force the Communists from the assembly chamber and down the "million dollar staircase" to the outside, where they were dispersed.

Scores of women delegates, most of whom represented teachers' organizations, paraded about the midway between the senate and assembly chambers before the judiciary committees of the two houses took their seats to conduct the hearing.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The stock market continued to back and fill listlessly today, with prices developing a somewhat heavy undertone.

Professional traders seemed somewhat discouraged by the lack of response to recent bullish efforts but brokerage opinion remained guardedly cheerful.

American Telephone and United States Steel Preferred lost about a point, and fractional declines appeared in United States Steel Common, Santa Fe, United Aircraft, Allied Chemical and others. In the rails Pennsylvania was turned over in some volume at fractional advances. Air Reduction rose more than a point, and General Electric, Eastman and Texas Gulf were moderately firm.

Wall Street again adopted a watchful waiting attitude, hoping for some break in the news which would provide market impetus.

The efforts of the railroads to induce their organized workers to accept a continuance of the ten per cent wage reduction which expires February 1 attracted considerable interest. The workers are seeking shorter hours to spread the work and in this connection, the Interstate Commerce Commission reported that a six hour day would have no material effect upon service but would increase operating expenses.

Move To Impeach President Hoover Rejected by House

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—The House of Representatives on a roll call vote this afternoon rejected a resolution proposed by Representative Louis T. McFadden, Pennsylvania Republican, looking to the impeachment of President Hoover. The vote was overwhelming.

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—Representative McFadden (R., Penna.), moved today to impeach President Hoover.

The Pennsylvanian, long a foe of the administration, made his move in the House of Representatives.

Walking to the well of the House, in front of the speaker's chair, he asked for recognition and presented a resolution saying that since President Hoover has "usurped the powers of Congress" he should be impeached.

After McFadden had repeatedly quarrelled with administration officials and attacked the President, he was shorn of his patronage privileges by his fellow party members more than a year ago.

He especially opposed the moratorium.

Council Considers Changes Friday

A special meeting of the common council will be held on next Friday evening. The two bond issues of $40,000 and $600,000 will be taken up at that time, and the proposed amendments to the city charter to provide for two tax payments will also come up for action.

The charter amendments were presented to the council at its meeting on November 15, and referred to the committee on laws and rules. This committee made a report at the meeting of the council last week on only the one proposed change relating to the payment of taxes in two instalments. The committee reported that it would consider the other proposed amendments later and report on them one at a time. While the council now has the right to amend the city charter under the home rule law of the state, any local act to change it can not be voted on until seven days have elapsed after the amendment has been submitted, which made it necessary to have the special meeting next Friday.

The laws and rules committee did not approve the tax amendment submitted by the Taxpayers' Association and prepared by former Mayor Palmer Canfield, its attorney. It adopted the two payment plan presented by the Taxpayers' Association but changed the times of payment. The amendment of the Taxpayers' Association provides for the payment of one-half the tax, including state, county, school and general city taxes, in the month of March and the remaining one-half in September. The laws and rules committee changed the proposed amendment and made the first one-half payable in February and the other one-half in May and leaving the school tax payable separately in August as at present. The amendment of the Taxpayers' Association also eliminated the penalties for non-payment and provided for the payment of interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent per month. The amendment as changed by the laws and rules committee provides for a penalty of two per cent if the tax is not paid within 20 days and a further penalty of five per cent if not paid within thirty days thereafter.

The council will decide on Friday night which method will be adopted and all taxpayers interested are urged to attend.

Opera First Night

By HANNAH LOWE

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

MARY HOLLOWAY settled herself in her seat just as the orchestra began tuning up. It was the opening night of the opera. Ever since childhood Mary Holloway had wanted to be just where she was—all dressed up in the Metropolitan Opera house on opening night of the opera.

Mary was not specially musical. But opening night at the opera—well, in her Mid-Western, small-town girlhood, that had meant something that nothing else meant. And when Mary sought her fortune in New York—and landed a fairly good job in a magazine office—she had thought of this night as the climax of her first winter in the big fairyland city.

As day had followed day and week had followed week, and months finally piled up, Mary had realized that, if she went to the opera, she would pay for her own tickets.

So Mary decided to go by herself. She bought an expensive evening dress. She sent home for the family pearls, and paid to have them insured. New slippers, too, to match the dress—with silver trimming. And long white gloves. She was ready to buy an extravagant evening coat, that she might never wear again. But one of the girls she knew had an aunt who lived a more formal life—she wasn't using her evening wrap that night. Mary could have it.

So Mary went to the opera.

There was an empty chair at her side. Just one, and beyond that, a party of half a dozen. She wondered who would fill it.

And when, just before the lights went out, a decidedly good looking and well dressed young man slid easily down beside her into the vacant chair.

The gay chatter died out as the lights went off and the orchestra leader took his place. And with the rising of the curtain Mary forgot about her next-door neighbor. But not for long.

"I beg your pardon," she heard a pleasant, well-modulated voice in her ear. "I'm sorry—but I dropped my pencil, and it's rolled down under the chair in front of you. I you don't mind, I'll try to get it."

"Oh, let me," whispered Mary, quickly. The music was forgotten. What she had really come to the opera for was the audience. And here was one of its most distinguished members talking to her. She leaned down and felt along the floor for the pencil. The she heard the whisper again. She turned her face and saw another close to hers. "Here" he said—"here's my pocket flash." And he held its tiny beam so that she could see along the floor until she had retrieved the rolling pencil.

They bumped their heads together a bit as they carefully and noiselessly worked back to an upright position. When they were settled again, with the feeling of old friends between them, Mary saw that he was writing in a little notebook. She sighed a little. She didn't want him to be too musical. It was one thing to have a governess, or whatever it was that looked after the rich children and took little boys to a matinee opera. Grown to a man, he still might find attractive a girl who had mortgaged her future to hear—and see—her first opera. But if he was too musical—if in the gloom he was jotting down musical notes, or something—well, Mary didn't want that. For already she wanted the young man next to her to like her.

He did. They spent their intermission together, and at the end of the last act he said, rather fumblingly, "My name is Squires—John Squires I suppose you're separated from your family—couldn't get seats together or something—an overflow from one of the boxes, perhaps? But if you're not—you've known me a lifetime, and you must know me well enough to let me take you home and—and to stop and get something to eat on the way?"

Mary accepted. This was a crazy party, anyway. She hadn't thought that one of the leading young New Yorkers would so informally, but quite courteously, rush her. But she liked him, and she was her most charming self as they stopped at a hotel restaurant for supper.

Over a salad and coffee he told her who he was. "You see," he said, "I come from the sticks. It's only fair to tell you that having you here with me just finishes out a dream I've had ever since I was a kid and used to read about the opera. I've just come to New York. Just a few weeks ago. And I was determined to go to the Metropolitan first night this winter. But I haven't met any nice girls. So I decided to go by myself. I've been taking notes on my impressions—of the audience, not the music—because I'm writing a story that needs opera local color. But I'm afraid most of my local color is—about you."

Then Mary explained. "I suppose you think I'm Miss Asterbilt off for an independent evening, or something like that? But I'm just a girl from the sticks, too, with a lifetime dream of going to an opera first night. And I've spent two weeks' salary for my dress and my cloak is borrowed—and that's the sort of a girl I am." She smiled bewitchingly at him, for she knew that it didn't matter to him what sort of a girl she was.

"We'll celebrate this anniversary every year in the same way," he hazarded boldly.

And Mary smiled again.

Good Training

Any new thing the youngster wants to do to help you, give him a chance to do it. It may cause you a lot more work in the end but it will either teach him how to do the job in the future or else he will learn how much work his parents go to, to do it for him. In either case it is good for him.—Grit.

Long Slumbers Denied to Coptic "Patriarchs"

One religious office which seems to have its drawback is that of the patriarch of the Coptic sect, whose members are descendants of the early Egyptian Christians. Under the rules of the church, the patriarch, who lives in Alexandria, must be awakened every 15 minutes when he sleeps. That practice would seem to take some of the joy out of the leadership of any movement, religious or otherwise.

Around about the beginning of this century the Copts totaled about one twelfth of all the population of Egypt. They dress like Mohammedans, but may be distinguished by their blue or black turbans.

The center of the Coptic population is around Cairo, although the members are generously scattered all over northern Egypt. The young of the Copts are highly intelligent and learn easily when at school. They have been found to make excellent clerks and handicraftsmen. They learn their native language while at school, but Arabic is the tongue used in their normal life.

Their religious organization, headed by the patriarch, includes bishops, monks and priests. The entire clergy, excepting only the patriarch, are permitted to be married, providing the marriage ceremony is gone through before the vows of holy orders are taken. Two fast days a week, Wednesday and Friday, are observed, while the fast of Nineveh is a long-drawn-out affair which lasts for two months.—Washington Star.

In Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of our darling daughter, Viola E. Harlow, who died 3 years ago today, December 13, 1929.

We had a little treasure once,
She was our joy and pride.
We loved her perhaps too well,
For soon she slept and died.
All is dark within our dwelling,
Lonely are our hearts today.
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever passed away.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, DAD AND HUSBAND.

'Dead' Hearts Brought Back To Life By Electricity Injected With Needle

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

New York (AP)—Electrocution stops the heart, but the opposite of electrocution, a tiny current, sometimes will cause a "dead" heart to beat again.

By using this discovery, Albert S. Hyman, M. D., of New York city, devised an electric needle which has restored life to many dead guinea pigs and rabbits, and recently to a very few human beings whose hearts had stopped.

Hyman's needle is a new method of doing something practiced by physicians for many years, events so rare in medicine that they are called "miracles" when the public happens to hear about them, but whose grand total is an impressive number.

Restores Beat of Heart.

The needle restores the beat to hearts which have stopped on account of shock. This happens most commonly in operating rooms, in street accidents, sometimes in drowning and on battlefields.

Surgeons sometimes have restored the beat of such a heart by squeezing it. More lately hypodermic needle injections of the powerful stimulant epinephrin, or adrenalin, directly into the heart, has restored life to many persons. There are 250 records of such attempts in medical literature with about 60 of them successful.

Hyman's studies convinced him that in the drug injections it was mostly the prick of the hypodermic needle in the heart which caused the renewed beat. He was able to show that the prick caused one, and usually only one beat. If the lone artificial beat caused the heart mechanism to "click" again, the patient came back to life.

Repeats Artificial Beats.

CLOSEUP OF NEEDLE

A tiny electrical current injected with a needle devised by Dr. Albert S. Hyman of New York, in some cases will make a "dead" heart beat again. The picture and sketches above show the needle and how it is used.

He found that an electric shock of the right sort caused a dead heart to beat once every time the current strikes, and in animal experiments that this repeated artificial beating was much more likely to restore life.

Many others, including himself, had previously experimented with electrical currents, sending them in fairly broad impulses through the heart. The trouble with these widespread currents was a tendency to act like the electrocuting current from the electric chair.

The new needle produces a current flowing across a spot in the heart not much wider than the point of a pin. It is a very tiny current, about one-thousandth part of a volt. The needle is hollow, and the current flows down a wire in the middle, and back through the outside tube.

Dr. Hyman's theory is that this needle imitates nature. He calls it the "pacemaker." It is named after a real section of the heart, some muscular tissues in the upper left hand part of the heart, which seem to act as "pacemakers" for the regular beating. Tests show that extremely minute electrical currents accompany the action of the heart's own "pacemaker."

The new needle substitutes an artificial electric current after the natural one has ceased. The man-made current flows anywhere from 50 to 120 times a second, producing that many artificial beats, the number being regulated by the physician.

Fix Salaries For County Officers

visors Wells, Lamouree and Webber, committee on salaries.

The report was adopted on motion of Supervisors Wells, Lamouree and Webber.

A report was submitted by the committee on insurance stating that the committee had examined the properties owned by the county and that insurance had been secured on property, including personal property of the county, snow removal equipment, etc., and that the whole amount of the claims for insurance was $16,349.65. The committee reported that insurance to the amount of $162,050 had been written on the County Home and contents of the buildings; $21,200 on Nurses' Home, and $154,550 on county buildings in the city of Kingston. Of the $16,349.65 premium to be paid for this insurance the committee recommended that there be apportioned the sum of $12,984.17 on the county at large and $3,365.48 on the county outside the city. The committee on insurance is Supervisors Stanbrough, Boice and Finch and the committee moved the adoption of the report and the appropriation required. Adopted.

Supervisors Voss, Cashdollar and Knoll, committee on errors in assessment, reported that claims amounting to $392.36 had been presented and $350.55 allowed. This amount should be apportioned and levied as follows:

Esopus	$66.45
New Paltz	10.38
Olive	.65
Saugerties	15.59
County of Ulster	257.45
Total	$350.55

The report of the committee was adopted.

Supervisors Dusinbere, Cashdollar and Terwilliger, committee on town and county accounts, reported claims amounting to $2,721.27 and that amount had been allowed and that the amount be assessed and levied on the county. Adopted.

On Supervisors bills, Supervisors Van Wagenen, Stanbrough and Terwilliger, the committee, reported claims amounting to $17,152.58 and that amount allowed. The amount in 1931 was $15,155.47. The committee moved the adoption of the report and an appropriation. Adopted.

The minutes of the committee on equalization were presented and ordered filed.

The report of the State Charities' Aid Association Children's Committee for Ulster county was received and filed. The report stated that at present there are 124 children in the care of the agency. During the past year 240 complaints and appeals were investigated.

A petition was received from taxpayers of the town of Rochester requesting that a highway in that town be placed on the map of improvement. The petition signed by 117 people of the town requested construction of the road beginning at the state road near the residence of Abram Besdesky and running northerly to Mettacahonts near the store of Oscar Markle, then easterly to Whitfield near the residence of William Gillespie, then southerly to the state road near the Edward Barley garage, a distance of five miles. Received and referred to county superintendent of highways.

A communication was received from Dr. Wy[illegible] of the Department of Social Welfare setting forth the need for appropriations for children's care at this time. He urged that the supervisors make the usual appropriations for this work at this time and not to cut the funds.

Mark Graves, director of the budget for the state of New York, wrote setting forth things which he stated should be done to reduce the state budget and relieve high taxes during the next two years while Governor-elect Lehman was in office. The "economy" measures among other things suggested that the state aid for maintenance of county highways be reduced and that the construction of county highways be limited to funds derived from motor license fees and gas tax money. Another "economy" measure was that the fund for repairing and improving town roads be reduced 25 per cent and that maintenance allowance on improved town highways be cut from $100 a mile to $75.

He further stated that some counties had voted to use motor vehicle license money and the gas tax money for payment of highway bonds already existing, rather than devote the money to construction and improvement of additional roads.

Mr. Graves stated that during 1933 and 1934 the state aid for county roads as provided under the Lowman act should be suspended and that this would effect a saving of a $2,121,200 appropriation outside New York.

The communication was received and filed.

A communication which was in the nature of a reply to the suggestions of Mr. Graves was presented from the Oswego board of supervisors. This communication and resolution from the Oswego board requested that the state make the usual appropriation under the Lowman act for county roads and that there be no division of gas tax or registration fee money for other than highway purposes. This resolution adopted by the Oswego board further requested that there be no reduction in state aid as paid under the highway law and that in addition the state pay the entire cost of securing rights of way for state highway construction. The communication was received and filed.

A resolution, offered by Supervisor Charlton, that Section 7 of Rule 6 be suspended so that resolutions calling for an appropriation can now be acted on the same evening presented, was adopted.

The board adopted a resolution that an appropriation for $2,000 be made the Veterans' Memorial Hospital at Ellenville for care of poor persons.

Resolutions from the previous session were called up and adopted.

There were 39 supervisors present and Supervisors Laicher and DuBois were excused.

On motion of Supervisor Finch, seconded by Supervisor Armater, the board adjourned until December 14, at 7:30 o'clock.

Ridgers Sure Of Giving Clowns A Hard Struggle

Pete Bruck's undefeated All Stars, representing Stone Ridge, rehearsed last night under the direction of Coach Bill Quick for their game with the Detroit Clowns Wednesday at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, and showed the same form that has enabled them to win six consecutive games, defeating some of the most formidable teams in this vicinity.

The Ridgers, although not overconfident, are sure that they will be able to at least hold their own with the Clowns, since the highly touted traveling club bowed to Steve Marone's Highland American Legion team last week, proving that it is not invincible. However, the Detroiters have won the greater part of some 200 games in the last three years, defeating outstanding quintets in every state from Maine to Florida. Last Saturday at Port Ewen they marched Alanson H. Short's Spinny Radio Five into camp in a thrilling game.

Because of their win at Port Ewen many basketball fans of this vicinity concede the Clowns a better chance of beating Stone Ridge than immediately after their downfall at Highland. It is the belief of experts that the travelers are in better form now and should give the Poultrymen a real hard battle. If the Clowns beat Stone Ridge, they probably will seek a return match with Highland in the near future.

Lineups for the High Falls game, which will start at 8:30 o'clock, are as follows:

Detroit Clowns	Pos.	Stone Ridge
Taylor	rf	Van Deusen
Wilkins	lf	Niles
Wilson	c	Knoll
Rubin	rg	Wood
Lulejian	lg	Merritt

Reserves: Clowns—Buster Kenny, Jack Banner; Stone Ridge—Pete Bruck.

Of course, Buster Kenny, chief funmaker of the Clowns, will give his regular performance between the halves, doing the routine of comedy that has made him a favorite in every place where he has played.

Preliminary to the feature there will be a game between the Rocknes of Stone Ridge and the Wilbur Girls, starting at 7:30 o'clock. After the games there will be dancing with music by Lee Hannibal's Troubadours.

Stone Ridge Record

The undefeated Stone Ridge team has defeated opposing quintets so far this season as follows:

Stone Ridge	Opponents
42	Rosendale	15
60	Germantown	28
31	Liberty	24
24	Liberty	13
52	Roscoe	23
43	Germantown	37

Games and Dance At Armory Friday

Next Friday night at the third of the series of basketball games and dances which A Battery, 156th Field Artillery, is conducting the artilleryman will play the Wilbur Men's Club in the main contest of the evening. The game will start at 8 o'clock sharp. For the preliminary game the Rosendale Girls have been secured to play the Wilbur Girls in a game scheduled to begin at 7 o'clock.

Following the game dancing will be in order to the peppy tunes of the Paramount Broadcasting orchestra. These dances are proving very popular with the younger set. If the two dances scheduled for December 16 and 23 are as successful as the two previous dances, it is understood that programs of a similar nature will be continued in the new armory on Manor avenue after New Year's.

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

"No brief need be held for Southern football supremacy in quite a few seasons antedating 1932," writes P. B. Williamson of Purvis, Miss., and a graduate of Auburn '12, yet he is concerned about the attempts this year to minimize Auburn's comeback or under-rate the general strength of Southern Conference teams.

By comparison he shows that Auburn's great team played a tougher schedule than Colgate's unscored-on outfit. He deplores the tendency among bigger schools of the east and middle west to fight shy of the top-notch southern teams, adding:

"If a few more of the leaders outside of the south would discontinue putting as a regular thing minor southern teams like Mississippi College, Millsaps, Richmond, etc., on their annual schedule and would enter into the same sort of competition with the Southern Conference as that between the middle west and east, then probably in time such spectacles as Rentner making All-American when Northwestern mopped up and not even All-Big Ten when Northwestern was not so hot, would not be the order of the day—nor would it seem to be a necessity amongst our so-called leading authorities to place men on the All-American team chiefly because they played on Notre Dame or Pittsburgh or Ohio State, regardless of the consistency of those teams' schedules or their record for the whole season."

Six Unbeaten Teams

As for, Auburn, her "Plainsmen" have been in the rarefied heights of football often enough and over a sufficent length of time to take her 1932 honors in becoming fashion. So far as I am aware, no one disputes the high rating of the team this season or the class of its captain and ball-carrying star, Jimmie Hitchcock.

Auburn had no less than six undefeated teams before the war. Two of these teams, in 1908 and 1914, coached by Mike Donahue of Yale, were not even scored upon, although the 1914 outfit was held to two scoreless ties. Over a stretch that included three seasons, 1913 to 1915, Auburn's goal line and uprights were uncrossed.

Auburn in 1918 played a scoreless tie with Ohio State, which had Chick Harley as its outstanding star and inspired this doggerel, as furnished by Mr. Williamson:

"Eleven men on Harley's chest—
"Yo ho! and a bottle of rum.
"He was the best in all the west,
"He was as good as they come.
"But Tiger meat
"Is tough to eat;
"As they know who have nibbled
at some."

Sold on Centenary

Mr. William concludes: "Auburn, Tennessee, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech, Tulane—and maybe V. P. I. and Duke—could throw a hell of a scare into any team from any other section of the country. Furman, South Carolina, Georgia, and others would fight to the last breath.

"The Centenary Gentlemen from a little bitsy college (over 100 years old) of Shreveport, La., might be another 'wonder team' and as good as anything developed in 1932 (regardless of Arkansas 0, Centenary 0, knee-deep in mud)."

MAYONE WON MATCH IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

John Mayone won his match in the Kaslich billiard tournament last night by a score of 100 to 56 over Kid Taylor. Mayone, who lost his first match in the tournament, was in great form last night and had several runs of 10 or more balls. These runs coupled with some careless misses on the part of Taylor who seemed to be slightly off his playing form, gave Mayone an early lead which was never overcome.

Tonight, Julius Tellier, city champion, will play against Taylor, in what promises to be a bitterly contested game as there is a great rivalry between these two players.

Nick Zinna Will Return to Ring

Nick Zinna, former uncrowned lightweight champion of the Hudson valley, and one of the best National Guard scrappers that ever represented Kingston in soldier boxing circles, has informed The Freeman that he will return to the ring after a long absence on Friday night at Brooklyn against Sammy White.

Zinna, who left Kingston last summer, wrote in his letter: "It sure took me a long time to get in shape. When I left Kingston for Brooklyn I weighed 150 pounds. Now I weigh 142 and am ready to fight. I have been training with Jackie Aldare and Tommy Jones and am ready to box Friday against Sammy White. Sure would be glad to see some Kingston faces at the ringside to see me try to hit my old stride. Best regards to all my friends."

Greatness Linked With Cause They Stood For

There are two kinds of great personalities. Some men and women by the sheer brilliance of their native endowment become individual geniuses, as Michelangelo was in painting or Einstein in science. There is, however, another road to powerful personality open to all of us. We can become interested in something greater than ourselves. We can identify ourselves with it, and stand for it. The more one studies the biographs of men like Washington and Lincoln, or women like Florence Nightingale, Dorothea Dix and Jane Addams, the more one feels that so far as individual brilliance is concerned they might conceivably have been lost in the crowd. What most of all gives them distinction is that they found something in their generation worth while standing for, identified themselves with a cause greater than themselves, and became so representative of it that when you think of it you think of them.—Harry Emerson Fosdick in Physical Culture Magazine.

Activities at The Y. M. C. A.

Carlton N. Foster, physical director at the Y. M. C. A., gave out a list of activities now under way in the boys' physical department of which he has control. Now that the winter season has set in fully, the interest in indoor sports and activities in general has reached its highest peak. There are the Leader Training Corps, Volleyball League, Junior and Senior Life Saving Corps, The Friendly Indian Game League, Senior League, Student B and Employed Boys' Basketball League and a few other divisions not yet organized.

Never has the time of the gym floor been so crowded as it is at present. Every period has a limited amount and that period must begin on the moment and end at the scheduled time or congestion of groups is brought about. Mr. Foster has it arranged, however, that each class has the amount of time to carry out its game or exercise period.

One of the most important groups in the "Y" is the Leader Training Corps that meets every Wednesday at 4 o'clock. The purpose of the group is to train young men and boys in the methods of leading classes in games during recreation periods, i.e., in calisthenics and apparatus work. The boys selected from all the groups for their ability in leadership, conduct, cooperation and other points of good character, stress good sportsmanship.

Following are the names of the boys of this group: Dornbush, Van Etten, Gere, Boyce, Davis, Scott, C. S. Rowland, Bailey, Finkle, Kearney, Cole, Purvis, Locke, Hanley, Walter, Grothkopp, Altimore, Murray, Holstein, Cahill, Lurie, Canter, Jones, Tubby, Pelham, Candall, Canfield.

Life Saving

Both the Junior and Senior Life Saving Groups have organized and are now meeting on Wednesdays for the purpose of instruction by Mr. Foster. The course requires 15 hours and will probably go over a period from 10 to 20 weeks. The director requests anyone who wishes to join the groups to do so as soon as possible.

The Senior Corps that meets every Wednesday night at 7:15 is as follows: T. Rowland, D. Boyce, H. Follette, V. Darrow, S. Myers, G. W. Kiss, E. Schmitt, E. Schmitt, H. Schroeder, A. Adams, W. Schline, R. Spencer, J. Whitaker and E. Tongue.

The Junior Corps that meets every Wednesday afternoon at 4:45 is as follows: Walter, Locke, Pelham, Cullen, Holstein, Shultz, Kearney, Dulin, Tubby, Nickels, Terwilliger, Cahill, Purvis, Murray, Roberts, Ford, Scott, Bailey, Canfield, Dornbush, Kantzler and Gere.

Senior League

Members of the Senior Gym Class are now signing up for teams in order to form a league. The run for the championship in this group last year was keen and drew a large crowd. It was one of the most outstanding leagues at the "Y" last year. Other members of the Senior Group who want to enter the league are asked to sign as soon as possible.

Those who have entered their names are as follows: Krum, G. Schline, H. Smith, E. Smith, Van Etten, Fox, J. Houghtaling, H. Houghtaling, A. Gilday, Liebert, Strong, Rose, Slater, Dolson, W. Schline, Hubbart, Joyce, Hitzen, Turck, Castello, Dunbar, Clayton, Blass, Follette, Myers, Adams.

Volleyball

Thursday evening at 8 o'clock a practice session will be held for the volleyball group and at 9 o'clock match games will be held. The teams will be selected from the following group, of which everyone is requested to report on time:

Dan Shufeldt, Chet Dolson, Art Wicks, Stan Winne, Ted Young, Jim Scott, Herm Roosa, Henry Kremper, Bob Brown, Bob Murray, Harold Clayton, Tom Morrissey, Jim Volker, Bill Jackson, Warren Smith, Clyde Wonderly and Wes Thompson.

THROUGH a WOMAN'S EYES

By JEAN NEWTON

DO YOU CLOSE YOUR MIND IN FEAR TO THE "LOCOMOTIVE"?

A LOCOMOTIVE rushing down the track in a moving picture screen so frightened an audience in a little Rumanian village that a panic ensued in which twelve persons were injured.

The occasion was the introduction of motion pictures into the village of Gaurescu. Whose inhabitants had never before seen a "movie" thriller and when the scene flashed of the train roaring along as they do in the movies, the peasant audience thought they would be run down. They made a wild rush for the door, in their panic wrecking the fixtures of the theater and injuring twelve of their number.

What dumb brutal stupidity you are impelled to think—if you do not say it—to be so afraid of something that can't possibly hurt them, to flee in panic from something new.

It doesn't take too profound thought, however, to recall similar cases in our own enlightened times. We do not fear, perhaps, [illegible] of them, or the screen—we are used to them as the house cat becomes used to the fierce barking dog which she has learned is quite harmless. But don't we close our eyes and ears and turn our backs on ideas or innovations that are to us like that screen engine to the Rumanian peasants—still new and unfamiliar?

We may not show fear of what is new by fleeing and going into a panic, showing physical terror. But there is the mental terror, the moral terror that many of us show at what is new in thought and ideas. Often we give this no more intelligent thought than the peasants gave that engine running down the movie tracks, no more rational consideration of the idea. And in the treatment that is frequently accorded to those who originate these thoughts and ideas we are so often guilty of no less scatter brained and unreasonable abandon than impelled the peasants to stampede.

And after all, they are primitive people—while we—we are so superior—we should know better!

COSMOPOLITAN DISHES

AS AMERICA has been called the melting pot of the world, so are we cosmopolitan in our national fare. It is not strange, as our foods, drinks, condiments and fruits come from all parts of the globe.

By association with foreign people, travel and reading, we are becoming international in our recipes as we have been with our frocks. At our breakfast tables we use tea from China or India, coffee from South America, and fruit from the West Indies.

With the increasing transportation facilities, we will be able to enjoy many of the perishable fruits that have never before been shipped to northern points in America.

Panama Salad.

Place a slice of pineapple on a bed of lettuce, cover with alternate segments of grapefruit and orange, using six slices of pineapple, one grapefruit and two oranges. Fill the cavity in the center with a pitted date that has been stuffed with cream cheese, which has been softened to a paste with the juices of the fruits.

Porto Rican Sandwiches.

Cut slices of pineapples into halves, making them half their original thickness. Split canned pimientoes into halves and drain between absorbent paper. Spread thin slices of bread—cut into rounds of the same size as the pineapple—with softened butter. Cover one round with a layer of mayonnaise, on a second place a slice of pineapple and a round of pimiento.

Mesopotamian Date Pudding.

Take one cupful of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of nut meats, one cupful of pitted dates, one cupful of milk, one-fourth cupful of honey, and one-fourth cupful of orange juice. Sift flour, salt and soda together. Add the dates to the milk, then the milk to the flour, add nuts and honey, stir in the orange juice. Pour into a greased baking dish and place over hot water to steam for two hours. Serve with hard or foamy sauce. This recipe serves ten.

Fateful Photographs

By H. IRVING KING

IT WAS an old, brown-stone mansion which once had been "aristocratic," situated in a street that was still intensely respectable.

Among the boarders was Arthur Warrington who had inherited a going business from his father and kept it going, and Louise Maplet, who lived on an annuity of $1,500 a year bequeathed her by a great aunt.

Both Arthur and Louise were about thirty years old and unmarried. Had either of them ever had any love affairs? Oh, yes, occasional flurries now and then, when they had been younger, but nothing serious or lasting. Louise's girlhood had been devoted to the care of an invalid mother and Arthur's youth to business.

But now that Arthur had got to a point where he did not have to devote so much attention to his business, he began to wonder why he had never got married. And Louise, her wants being modest, began to ponder a little as to why she still remained single. One day, old Mrs. Pettigrew, who had been only six months in the house, shook her gray head at Arthur and tapping him with her fan, said she wondered why he had never married. Arthur was suddenly seized with an impulse to prevaricate.

"Mrs. Pettigrew," said he solemnly, "It is a matter of which I seldom speak you will understand. But I feel that I may confide in you. I have a picture in my room, if you saw it, but her station in life was far above mine, she is now the wife of another."

"Oh, do show it to me, Mr. Warrington," cried the dowager.

"Not today," replied Arthur, "tomorrow, perhaps." And he went off chuckling to himself at his own depravity. And Arthur did have a picture in his room, the picture of a beautiful and aristocratic-looking young lady. It was a picture of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland at the age of nineteen, which he had bought in Amsterdam, the last time he was in Europe.

Arthur had the photograph framed in silver filigree and the next night showed it to Mrs. Pettigrew, enjoining upon her the strictest secrecy. And of course inside of the hour everybody in the boarding house knew of his hopeless love affair with a haughty unknown. Louise, to her surprise, heard the story with a little pang of jealousy. Her thoughts went straying about that picture, she would just like to get a look at it.

Louise and Arthur had become very good friends, very good friends indeed. But their intimacy had been one of gradual growth and neither had ever seriously contemplated the other from a matrimonial standpoint. Even the boarding house gossips, who had said at first "it looks as if it was going to be a match," had long ago given up the idea. But somehow that picture, Louise could not get it out of her head. And Arthur, having by his shameful deception of Mrs. Pettigrew got his thoughts to running on the subject of matrimony, found himself comparing the photographic counterfeit of Queen Wilhelmina with Louise, and, considered that on the whole, her majesty was a trifle inferior to Miss Maplet.

Then Louise did a very disgraceful and utterly reprehensible thing, she bribed the chambermaid, when Arthur was out to take the much-talked-of picture from where it stood on his bureau and bring it to her room for a minute, so that she might get a look at it. Louise gazed at the photograph for some time with a puzzled expression, as if she were trying to remember something. For the next two weeks she did nothing but haunt print shops and places where photographs of celebrities could be purchased. At the expiration of that period Arthur came in one day, just at dusk, and hearing some one give a little cough in the front parlor, looked in to see Louise sitting there alone.

As he entered with a cheery greeting Louise gave a start and a little scream; and made as if to conceal a photograph which she had been contemplating. Arthur's brow suddenly darkened. "Ah," said he, "Contemplating the features of the beloved and lost one, here in the twilight? How romantic."

He had meant to speak lightly and airily; but he had spoken churlishly and bitterly.

"Oh," replied Louise, "I don't know why I should not tell you. It does not matter now. He never could have been mine. Here you may look at it if you insist."

Arthur almost grabbed the photograph which Louise extended to him. It was the portrait of a fine looking young man, and it was not so dark in the room but that he could read printed at the bottom of the picture, "Prince Henry of Mecklenburg."

"You, you," stammered Arthur, "you have seen my picture of Wilhelmina?"

"I have," replied Louise with a laugh.

"Hum," said Arthur and sat and looked at her for a full two minutes. Then he said, "Well, Wilhelmina and Henry got married, and why in the thunder shouldn't we?"

"Oh, Mr. Warrington," gasped Louise.

"Mr. Warrington, nothing!" cried he. "Arthur." And the next moment she was struggling to free herself from his embrace, but she didn't struggle very hard.

FUGITIVE 34 YEARS, IS GRANTED PARDON

Free Robber Who Returns to Serve Sentence.

Kansas City, Mo.—A desire to be square with the law by serving a sentence imposed on him 34 years ago has been rewarded by an unconditional pardon from President Hoover to William Kirby Robinson, now sixty-five years old.

Early in October Robinson appeared at the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., and offered to serve a four-year sentence imposed on him in 1898 on a charge of robbing a post office.

No records were available, but Robinson explained the circumstances of the crime. He said he had been convicted at Fort Smith, Ark., in 1898 and was on the way to the penitentiary when he picked the lock on his handcuffs, leaped from the window of a moving passenger train near Coffeyville, Kan., and escaped.

Moves to California.

From there he went to Galveston, Texas. Later he moved to California and married. As the years passed there always was a living to make for his family so he did not find his way clear to return to the prison and pay his debt to society. Then he was divorced and later remarried. Finally he prospered. He now owns a large tourist camp and a store at Westmoreland, Calif. His home is at Cabazon.

Last fall he decided to return to face the penalty for the crime.

"All through the years," he said recently, "I had that struggle with my conscience. I realized that the right course for me to take was to surrender to whatever judgment the government would impose on me. It was my desire to do right which led me to take the step and return to Leavenworth."

Robinson said he discussed the problem with his wife and she also agreed his decision was right.

Serves Time in Jail.

Since his return to Leavenworth he has been held in jail by the government until notified that his pardon had been issued.

Robinson, preparing to leave the jail, said at least twelve persons at Westmoreland knew his story. Senator Shortridge of California and Representative Phil Swing knew it in 1920. They sought to obtain a pardon for him during the Harding administration but failed.

Robinson is going back to his wife, his home, and his business. He is going back to the friends who respect him in the community. He is going back to a future insured by good investments and a sound banking account.

Driver Dozes at Wheel, Starts Train of Grief

The automobile hit a hydrant, releasing a torrent of water which felled a telegraph pole carrying high-tension wires.

The Pines river drawbridge, operated by the wires, temporarily was crippled, and street lights in the manufacturing district were extinguished.

The wires set fire to the automobile.

Kowera was treated for burns and then taken to court, where he was fined $25 for reckless driving.

Age of Ink on Wills Wins Estate for Woman

Oakland, Calif.—The age of ink on two wills, both dated the same, won for Miss Victoria Nowell the $30,000 estate of her sister, Miss Harriet Nowell, under Superior court ruling.

When E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley graphologist and criminologist, testified before Judge Lincoln Church that the shorter of two wills, leaving everything to Miss Nowell, was written at a later date than one dividing the estate with charity the judge ruled in favor of the dead woman's sister.

Houses "Imported" by Coast Settlers

Vallejo, Calif. — Twentieth-century Californians pattern their homes after the houses of France, Spain or Great Britain, but in the days of California's post-Spanish glory an aristocrat who wished to build himself an attractive new estate frequently imported the very buildings from afar.

Thus in 1850 Gen. Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo imported a house from New York and another from Switzerland. About a mile from Sonoma they stand today.

The first was made to order in Switzerland. Dismantled, it was loaded piece by piece into a sailing vessel. From Europe it made the many weeks' journey to California around the Horn.

Carried by ox-drawn carts to the intended site, the pieces were put together by Indians. Each piece, numbered, was carefully laid in its proper place. No nails or screws were used in the building. It was glued and bound together.

The second house was constructed in New York, taken apart and packed by wagon over prairies and mountains.

Eyes of Reptiles

True snakes do not have movable eyelids. In lizards and in birds the eyelids are movable but with these it is the lower lid that comes up to cover the eyes instead of the upper lid coming down as is the case with mammals.

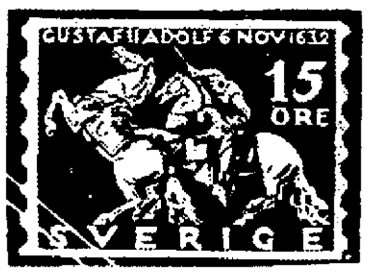
A new series of six stamps, showing the portraits of Austria's best known painters, has been issued by the Austrian postal authorities in values of 12, 24, 30, 40 and 64 groschen and 1 schilling.

They are limited to 50,000 each and are sold only in series of six and at double their face value, half the proceeds being turned over to welfare organizations.

The 12 groschen, dark green, shows F. G. Waldmueller; 24 groschen, violet, Moritz von Schwind; 30 groschen, light red, Rudolf von Alt; 40 groschen, gray, Hans Makart; 64 groschen, brown, Gustav Klimt, and 1 schilling, dark red, A. Egger-Linz.

Honoring A King

A new Swedish issue commemorates the three hundredth anniversary of the death of King Gustavus Adolphus, who was killed on November 6, 1632, at the battle of Lutzen. The engagement, which Sweden won, was part of the Thirty Years' War. Lutzen is in Saxony, 10 miles southwest of Leipzig.



The stamps are issued in these values and colors: 10 ore, purple; 15 ore, scarlet; 25 ore, blue, and 90 ore, green.

No "Lovey-Doveys"

Some of the suggestions for memorial stamps that pour into M. L. Eidsness, director of the stamp division of the United States post office department, receive scant consideration.

One of the most amusing ones came from a group asking "lovey-dovey" stamps printed for the use of lovers. They felt, they said, that such a stamp would insure "tender handling" by the postman.

Other stamps proposed would commemorate Mothers' Day, the hundredth anniversary of the locomotive, President Lincoln as a postmaster, the hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Mississippi's source, William Holmes McGuffey, who wrote the famous readers, and "Hambletonian," race horse.

Those being seriously considered for the new year include a Chicago World's fair series, a stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and one in honor of the 200th anniversary of the founding of the first volunteer fire fighters' unit in Philadelphia.

Of the memorial stamps issued the past two years, the Washington bicentennial series has been by far the largest, running above seven billion for the one-half cent to the 10-cent denominations, inclusive.

The Tenth Olympiad stamp of 1932 is next largest.

News from the World on Wheels

Pontiac soon will announce a new big straight eight in the low price field. Concentrating upon a single type of motor and chassis for 1933, the Pontiac organization has effected major manufacturing economies which will be reflected in a sharp increase in values offered to Pontiac buyers. Seven new Fisher bodies have been designed for the 1933 chassis. All are low, ultra-modern and smartly stream-lined. Among them is included an innovation in body types, a close-coupled five-passenger two-door model carrying a trunk which is known as the Touring Sedan. The new Fisher no-draft ventilation system is built into each of the body models and super-safety glass windshields are standard.

Once again more than 1,000,000 persons visited Buick showrooms to inspect the new line of cars, according to telegrams from key cities, Buick officials report. Not only was attendance high during the first and second day of the showing, but actual sales were reported to exceed those for last year. Figures tabulated in key cities showed that the number of people visiting the Buick showrooms on the first day the new cars were displayed equalled or exceeded those of previous years. In virtually every case the buying interest was more keen than it has been in the recent past, and factory executives report that orders on hand indicate increasing production schedules for some time to come. Detroit, which is considered the most critical automobile city of the world, is representative of the reports received from all sections. In that city for example 10,336 persons visited the showroom in the General Motors Building the first day of the display.

Expert Motorman Had Fall and Stroke

Everett S. Hewitt, 20 Washington avenue, who many years ago was "ace" motorman on the local trolley lines, suffered a fall and stroke during the past week, and is now recovering at the Orthmann Sanitarium. Mr. Hewitt fell from his bed a week ago Sunday, and was removed to the sanitarium, where he later suffered the stroke paralyzing the left side of his body.

Mr. Hewitt was an expert in operating the trolley cars of 30 years ago, and The Freeman published during that time had this to say concerning his mastery of guiding the "electric horses" over the silver ribbons:

Yesterday afternoon Dr. T. P. Ostrander stood on the crosswalk at the foot of Chestnut street and hailed an approaching street car. This, however, was nothing unusual but the method he adopted in doing was. He raised his right hand and extended three fingers of that member. This act did not mean "three beers" as is generally understood and the veteran Motorman Hewitt, it seems, was well versed in the mystic signal, for he brought the car to a standstill so that the third seat in the car came immediately in front of the Doctor. Mr. Hewitt, it is said, has become so proficient in this line that if a gentleman wishes to take one of the two seats reserved for smokers, all that is required is to raise the right hand and extend two fingers dropping them once if the first seat is wanted or twice if the last is required. He never fails, it is claimed, to bring the car to a full stop at the required seat. Other motormen on this road are also very expert in stopping cars and it is not an unusual sight to see a motorman pick out empty seats so that they come in front of the passenger.
